Acalotti Called 'Evil', Gets 8-24 Months

Judge Wants 'Till' Sent To a Prison At a Distance

Holtzoff Fears He Might Contact Pals If Sent to Lorton; Denied Appeal Bail

By Benjamin Bradlee
Post Reporter

Attilio (Till) Acalotti, 42, indicted gambler and self-styled "Mayor of Thomas Circle," was sentenced to serve from eight months to two years in prison yesterday for threatening a Government witness.

Judge Alexander Holtzoff described Acalotti as an "evil influence," and refused to let him out on bail, pending an appeal from his conviction Tuesday.

At the same time Judge Holtzoff complimented the pretty Government witness Acalotti was convicted of threatening.

Speaking of Bernice Franklin, 30, Acalotti's former girl friend, the judge said "the Government witness showed commendable courage and rendered a public service" in testifying against Acalotti and others.

Convicted of Threat

Acalotti was convicted for threatening to "bash in" Miss Franklin's face at a time when she was testifying before the special gambling grand jury in March. She lives at 1750 16th st. nw. As a result of her testimony the gambling grand jury returned three gambling indictments against Acalotti. These cases have been set for trial in January.

After Judge Holtzoff imposed sentence on Acalotti, alias Till Alcott, 908 14th st. nw., he said "the court feels it desirable to separate the defendant from any connection with his associates and to make it difficult for them to communicate with him."

"Accordingly," the judge continued, "the court will recommend to the Attorney General that he be committed not to Lorton (the District Reformatory at Lorton, Va.) but to a Federal penitentiary a considerable distance from Washington."

Faced 3-Year Maximum

Acalotti faced a maximum sentence of three years in jail plus a fine of $200 for the obstruction of justice charge.

Charles E. Ford, Acalotti's lawyer, asked Judge Holtzoff for leniency on these grounds:

(1) The defendant's only prior record was for disorderly conduct, on which he forfeited $50.

(2) Bernice Franklin called Acalotti on the telephone on March 4 the day on which he threatened her. "This defendant did not take the initiative," Ford said.

(3) Although the offense is abstractly serious, Ford said, Acalotti "never lifted a finger to harm her and his culpability was as small as any I can conceive of and still fall within the statute."

When Ford had finished Judge Holtzoff stated that "uncontradicted evidence during the trial" indicated that Acalotti "was also engaged in professional gambling on a considerable scale and the sale of liquor after hours."

Auchincloss Asks President To Renew Home-Rule Plea

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Representative James C. Auchincloss (R., N. J.) yesterday called for President Truman to include a strong appeal for enactment of Washington home-rule legislation in his State of the Union Message to Congress in January.

He said a strong statement by the President—already the author of several strong statements favoring home rule for Washington—could serve as a mandate to the leadership for action on home rule.

With leadership help, he said, various things could be done to get action on home-rule legislation.

The home-rule bill, passed by the Senate and tabled by the House District Committee, is now the subject of a House discharge petition. Signatures of 218 members, a majority of the House, would bring the bill to a House vote.

Auchincloss, addressing a Central Suffrage Conference luncheon made no predictions that the discharge method would succeed. He warned the discharge method posed a "very intricate problem"—that many members who will support a home-rule bill won't sign a discharge petition.

He said there were other ways

Murray Sees Health Bill Lost For '50 But Issue in Election

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Senator James E. Murray (D., Mont.), the Senate's No. 1 New Dealer and Fair Dealer, practically conceded yesterday that Congress won't repeal the Taft-Hartley Act or pass compulsory health insurance during the 1950 "short" session of Congress.

He told Capitol reporters both measures should be made heart issues in the 1950 off-year campaign so the Eighty-second Congress will have a "clear mandate" to act.

He said he had no plans to speak in Ohio against Senator Robert A. Taft, coauthor of the Taft-Hartley Act, because Senator Taft "did not come into Montana against me when I was running for reelection."

Murray said he "does not anticipate" passage next session of the Administration's compulsory health insurance bill, of which he is leading sponsor, "unless agitation against the bill by the American Medical Association lobby puts it over."

"They (the medical lobby) are bringing it to the front," the Montana Democrat said. "They are getting the public interested in this thing the AMA calls 'socialized medicine.' The public may find it isn't what the lobby says it is, and decide it's a very good thing to have. It should help us pass it."

Murray is chairman of a Senate Education and Labor subcommittee studying various health insurance bills introduced last session. The group is slated to report to the full committee in February, Murray said.

He is also chairman of the Joint Congressional Taft-Hartley Act "watchdog" committee studying operation of the labor law and now seeking ways to repeal it.

Discussing the bleak prospects of repealing the Taft-Hartley Act in the second half of the Eighty-first Congress, Murray pointed out that the recommitted House repealer appeared stymied, while the Senate-passed bill revived most of the Taft-Hartley Act features.

"The only thing that remains to

Price Inquiry Is Welcomed By U. S. Steel

Pittsburgh, Dec. 16 (AP)—Benjamin F. Fairless, president of U. S. Steel Corporation, said today Big Steel welcomes an opportunity to tell a Congressional committee of a price increase it announced today.

Fairless made the remark in a short statement. He said it was in reply to reports from Washington that Congressional investigators will soon probe U. S. Steel's average 4-percent price hike in steel which went into effect at 12:01 a.m. (Eastern Standard Time) today.

Senator O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.), chairman of the Joint Congressional Economic Committee, declared yesterday the price raise is unjustified and will have an inflationary effect on America's economy.

Advised of the Fairless statement, O'Mahoney said tonight:

"That's splendid. It clears the way and I certainly shall recommend to my committee that we proceed and get the facts."

Other major steel producers have not yet followed the lead of Big Steel in boosting steel prices but such action is generally expected before the end of the year.

France Asks U. S. For Plane Carrier; Unlikely to Get It

France has requested that an American aircraft carrier be included in the military equipment it is to receive under the North Atlantic defense treaty.

Diplomatic officials who reported this yesterday said; however, that action on the request will be delayed. They said it is unlikely such a vessel would be sent as part of France's allotments from the one million dollars appropriated for aid to pact nations to July 1, 1950.

Officials said it is felt that the Atlantic Pact strategy should concentrate on rebuilding land forces during the first year. The French are scheduled to get the biggest chunk of the million dollar aid.

In Paris, National Defense minister Rene Pleven told the National Assembly that France will get a United States carrier in the aid program.

Chile Bans Meetings

Santigo, Chile, Dec. 16 (U.P.).—A government decree today banned all public meetings in mining towns throughout Chile, contending that Communists were agitating again to reduce production of vital copper, nitrate and coal.

New Gifts Put Chest Drive Within Half-Million of Goal

With $89,822 in new pledges reported, the Community Chest yesterday reached a campaign total of $3,526,298—or 88.34 percent of goal.

This means the Chest is now less than a half million dollars short of its quota of $3,991,719. From Harold Russell, famed star of "The Best Years of Our Lives," workers at a Washington Hotel luncheon heard that this is "not a lot of money" to raise.

"The reason more people have not subscribed," Russell, who lost both hands in World War II, said, "is that no one has actually gone to them and told them what the Chest does."

Russell, national commander of Amvets, proved one of the most popular speakers of the luncheon series, keeping his audience in an uproar of laughter with his anecdotes.

At the end of his speech the man who himself won two Hollywood "Oscars" handed out several Community Chest "Oscars" to campaign workers.

While still short of goal, the totals reached yesterday represented 15,000 more givers than last year and $80,000 more raised.

Campaign Chairman Frank J. Luchs scheduled the next report

D. C. Right To Condemn Slum Upheld

The right of District officials to condemn dwellings for unsanitary conditions endangering the health of occupants was upheld yesterday by the United States Court of Appeals.

The opinion sustains a District Court ruling of March 1948, and represents the first complete constitutionality test of the city's 43-year-old condemnation law.

At the District Building the ruling was hailed, since the previously questioned statute has been the backbone of District Government efforts to make salvageable slum dwellings habitable.

The decision grew out of a suit filed by Miss Minnie Keyes, owner of 11 detached houses in the 100 block of P st. sw., against the District Board for Condemnation of Insanitary Buildings. Since November 1944, the board had been urging Miss Keyes to make certain repairs on her property and three months later brought condemnation proceedings.

Yesterday's ruling had the effect of sustaining the condemnation of the 11 houses. All of the dwellings have been vacated since February, 1948. Should Miss Keyes now make repairs acceptable to standards set by the Condemnation Board they presumably could again be occupied, Assistant Corporation Counsel Milton Korman said last night.

Under the condemnation law, the board is also empowered to order buildings razed but has hesitated to invoke that authority.

No Standards Established

In her suit, Miss Keyes charged that the statute, under which the board proceeded, amounted to deprivation of property without due process of law, and therefore was unconstitutional as applied to her particular case.

In argument before the appeals bench, Miss Keyes' attorney, James M. Earnest, also asserted that the condemnation law was unconstitutional on "its face" because "Congress, in delegating to the board the power to condemn buildings . . . did not establish standards for the guidance of the board."

On this point, the opinion, written by Judge Wilbur K. Miller, said:

"We regard the statute which created the board for condemnation of insanitary buildings and defined its jurisdiction and authority as being sufficiently definite and certain to guide the board and to inform property owners of conditions which would lead to condemnation. "Our conclusion is

If you like cold weather you'll revel in today's early morning mercury reading; a frosty 25 in the city and an even frostier 15 in the suburbs were predicted last night.

The day will be mostly sunny, the Weather Bureau advises, and a wee bit warmer than yesterday. During the afternoon the thermometer is expected to head up to the middle 40's.

Yesterday's nippy weather saw the coldest weather of this season with the official thermometer at National Airport descending to 24 at 6:30 a. m. It has not been that cold since last March 16.

But it was even chillier at suburban points: 10 at Riverdale, 12 at Annandale and Rock Creek Forest, 13 at Greenbelt, and 14 at West Lanham Hills.

Doctors Win Fight for Dogs

Baltimore, Dec. 16 (AP)—The Baltimore City Council voted today to allow medical schools and hospitals to obtain stray dogs, collected under a city contract, for medical research.

The 15-to-5 vote came in a past-midnight session. It climaxed a heated controversy launched about two months ago, when doctors and health officials in this noted medical center asked the city for the right to use in research stray, unwanted dogs that otherwise would be put to death by the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

The SPCA, which has an exclusive contract with the city for the collection of strays, was opposed to delivering any dogs to the medical schools of Johns Hopkins University and the University of Maryland. The society was joined in its stand by several antivivisectionist groups.

(In Washington, medical institutions are seeking similar relief. They lost out last August when a Senate subcommittee disapproved a bill that would have permitted such acquisition of unclaimed dogs from the District Pound. Sponsors of the measure said efforts will be renewed for the enabling legislation.—Editor's note.)

Shortly before the council approved the new ordinance, Paul Berman, an attorney for the SPCA, announced that the organization "will not bid on any contract that permits" medical and surgical research. The present contract expires January 1.

In answer to this, Arthur W. Machen, also an attorney, told the council that if the SPCA refuses to collect strays then a new society should be organized for the purpose. He announced that he had in his possession a charter prepared "for that very purpose."

The council-approved legislation states that when medical schools, schools of dentistry, pharmacy, hygiene and public health or hospitals apply in writing to the commissioner of health for permission to use "unclaimed, impounded dogs, which would otherwise be killed under the provisions of this ordinance, for the good of mankind and scientific investigation and teaching . . . the commissioner of health shall approve such request . . ."

The ordinance provides that dogs used in operations must "be rendered incapable of feeling pain."

Nitze to Head Planning Staff At State Dept.

The State Department yesterday appointed Paul Nitze, an economic specialist, as director of the department's policy planning staff. He will succeed George Kennan, who has asked for a leave of absence.

The change will become effective January 1 but Kennan will remain as a counselor with the State Department until next summer or fall when his leave will begin. Even then Kennan will retain his status with the foreign service and is expected to return to the State Department, department officials said.

Kennan plans to study and write about foreign affairs during his leave.

He has been one of the most influential men in American foreign policy matters since the war ended and is generally accepted as the father of America's program, to contain communism wherever it is found.

Nitze, 42, has been deputy director of the policy planning staff since last August.

He entered Government service as financial director of the Office of the Coordinator of Inter-American Affairs.

He worked with the Board of Economic Warfare and the Foreign Economic Administration during the war and served as vice chairman of the United States strategic bombing survey.

Nitze joined the State Department in 1946 when he became acting director of the Office of International Trade Policy.

Four Emergency Measures Slated For Md. Assembly

Annapolis, Md., Dec. 16 (AP).—Governor Lane today closed the door on minor legislation as the Maryland General Assembly prepared to convene Saturday in extraordinary session.

Four emergency bills have been given administration blessing for approval at the special one-day session.

Approved bills are these:

1. To reenact the 50 million dollar school construction bond law, which, as approved by the 1949 Legislature, was invalidated because of a clerical error.

2. To appropriate $300,000 from the treasury surplus for welfare relief of Maryland's jobless who have exhausted their regular unemployment compensation and still can't find work.

3. To correct a technical error in an act authorizing a $350,000 bond issue to finance construction of a new building at the Maryland school for the blind.

4. To enact a new search warrant law to replace any technical deficiencies in the present act.

A fifth bill, appropriating about $18,000 to cover the expense of the special session itself, is just routine.

Bulgars Hang Kostov; Cite 'Confession'

By Gaston Coblentz

Belgrade, Dec. 16 (NYHT).—Traicho Kostov was executed by hanging in Sofia today, the Bulgarian radio announced tonight unexpectedly.

A groveling pre-execution clemency plea and total admission of guilt of all the accusations against him in the Bulgarian treason trial were attributed to the former Bulgarian Communist leader by a report of the Sofia Government broadcast by the radio at 9:30 p. m., Greenwich mean time.

The following improbable phraseology was quoted as coming from Kostov, who in court twice denied he plotted with the United States, Britain and Marshal Tito to overthrow the Bulgarian Communist government:

". . . The sentence is absolutely just and consonant with the interests of the normal and tranquil evolution of Bulgaria and necessary in the struggle against the Anglo-American imperialists and their agents."

Central Bank Drafted for West Europe

Paris, Dec. 16 (NYHT)—The United States is presenting the western European countries with a plan for establishment by April 1 of a European central bank, it is learned.

So far, the scheme is described by observers only as a working draft submitted for discussion by the Europeans, but considerable importance is attached to it by the Americans as a means for carrying out the "integration" asked last month by Economic Cooperation Administrator Paul G. Hoffman.

It was presented in detail to the Europeans at a meeting in Paris last Saturday of ECA officials and heads of member delegations to the Organization for European Economic Cooperation.

Richard Bissell, assistant deputy director of ECA, is understood to have outlined the scheme. It is reported also the details are being further presented in each country.

The effect of such a plan—a sort of clearing house system—would be to push Europe much farther along the path of free trade and currency convertibility than anything now planned by the Europeans themselves, including such projects as the five-nation regional grouping of France, Italy and Benelux. It also would do away with the current use of drawing rights—credits granted bilaterally by European creditor nations to their debtors partly on the basis of dollars alloted to the creditors by the United States.

Former Employes Maul Chennault At Hongkong

Taipeh, Formosa, Dec. 16 (U.P.).—Maj. Gen. Claire Chennault, head of the Civil Air Transport airline, was manhandled today at a Hongkong airport by some of his former Chinese employes while others tried to sabotage the plane on which he planned to fly here.

Chief CAT Pilot Roberto Rousselot of Noel, Mo., caught saboteurs cutting cables on the plane of the former leader of the Flying Tigers.

Rousselot grappled with the saboteurs and was attacked by 10 or more Chinese armed with knives. Rousselot was joined by another pilot, "Dutch" Brosmerga.

In the fighting several other planes were damaged. Chennault managed to call police, who picked up several suspects, restored order and ejected former employes from the field.

Chennault arrived here safely today. Ten planes were able to fly to Formosa today but six others were grounded by sabotage. They were expected to arrive later.

The Hongkong brawl occurred when several hundred CAT Chinese employes demanded six months' severance pay after being paid off yesterday when they refused to fly the planes to Formosa.

French Revise Proposal for Israel Blast

Lake Success, Dec. 16 (AP).—France withdrew from the U. N. Trusteeship Council today a strongly worded proposal to scold Israel for making Jerusalem her operative capital by moving government offices there.

In its place France and Belgium joined in offering a softened resolution which they revised still further before the 12-nation Council. The draft states merely that the Council considers that the movement of some Israeli government offices to Jerusalem "is likely to render more difficult" the task of placing the holy city under United Nations rule.

Fadhil Al-Jamali of Arab Iraq raised objections. He said the Council could not deal with the Jerusalem question with a resolution that had been watered down and added that the Israelis "want Jerusalem to be as Jewish as Washington is American and Moscow Russian."

The Iraqi delegate was the only member of the Council who backed the original French resolution, introduced at a closed session yesterday. Other delegates refrained from committing themselves then. But their speeches today indicated

16 Poles 'Kidnap' Plane and Flee To Danish Island

Roenne, Bornholm Island, Dec. 16 (U.P.). — Sixteen happy Poles stepped to the soil of this Danish island from a "kidnaped" airliner today, some cheering and some weeping for joy after fleeing Communist-dominated Poland.

Two others — a passenger and crewman taken for an unexpected ride — indignantly began making plans to return to their homeland.

The plane, carrying 15 passengers and a crew of three, left Lodz, in central Poland, early today, ostensibly on a regular flight to Danzig. On the way, the plane changed course and headed across the Baltic Sea to Roenne.

Fourteen passengers and two of the crew—the pilot and 15 close friends or relatives—had planned the escape for months. Their passports were ready, and some had obtained American currency.

The 16 registered at a hotel, hoping to take off Saturday for England to seek asylum as political refugees.

Johnson Friends Deny Report He Plans to Resign

Reports that Defense Secretary Louis Johnson and Undersecretary Stephen T. Early were planning to resign this winter or next spring were circulating in Washington last night.

While neither of them could be reached for comment, officials close to them said there was nothing to the report and said they understood both Johnson and Early, within the past day or two, had denied the reports.

Shopping Center of 20 Stores Is Planned for Clarendon

Plans for development of a new multimillion-dollar extension to the present Clarendon shopping center in Arlington were disclosed yesterday by Mace Properties, Inc.

Site of the development, expected to include one large department store and about 20 specialty shops, will be a 14-acre tract west of the Clarendon circle. About 10 acres of parking space will probably be included.

Lying between Fairfax drive, recently improved by the State, and Washington blvd., the area is bounded on the east by the Kirkwood rd. right-of-way and on the west by N. Monroe st.

Though plans are still in the discussion stage, preliminary architects sketches are being drawn by a New York firm. Construction will probably start next spring.

Clearance for the retail shopping project was obtained on Tuesday, when the county board rezoned the tract to general commercial classification. Application for the rezoning was filed in the name of Edward S. Ernst, former owner of the land.

M. A. Mace is also responsible for the West Lawn and Westover developments in Arlington.

Allies Ban Militarism In Western Germany

Rearming Stirs Clash at Bonn; Adenauer Object Of Reds' Tirade

By Robert Haeger
United Press Staff Writer

Bonn, Germany, Dec. 16.—The Western Allies tonight forbade all military, semi-military and Nazi-like organizations in Western Germany, and prescribed penalties ranging up to life imprisonment for violators.

The sweeping ban will be enforced by the Western Powers until a formal peace treaty decides whether Germany will be permitted military forces and how big they may be.

A few hours before the ban was announced a session of the West German Parliament here broke up in a storm of hoots and jeers after Communist Leader Max Reimann compared Chancellor Konrad Adenauer to Hitler and hinted he was preparing Germany for a new war.

John J. McCloy, Gen. Sir Brian Robertson and Andre Francois-Poncet, the American, British and French High Commissioners, respectively, issued their ban after a meeting in their hilltop headquarters in the Petersberg Hotel. Their decree forbids:

1. Military organizations.
2. Semimilitary organizations.
3. Organizations which require any of their members to be war veterans.
4. National Socialist (Nazi) organizations.

Stern Ban a Suprise

"Any violation of the provisions of this law shall be punishable by any term of imprisonment, including imprisonment for life, or a fine not exceeding 100,000 deutschmarks ($23,800) or by both such fine and imprisonment," the decree specified.

The stern ban came as a surprise. It cuts directly across the apparent plans of Chancellor Adenauer who first hinted at the possibility that German troops might be added to a Western European army and then in succeeding days worked his hints up to a virtual demand.

The ban made somewhat academic the angry parliamentary meeting at which Communist Reimann attacked Adenauer on the militarization question.

Two hundred pro-government deputies, led by House President Erich Koehler, walked out of a Bundestag (Lower House) session after repeated clanging of Koehler's big brass bell failed to restore order.

Catcalls and shouts from the right side of the House almost drowned out Reimann after he said:

"Hitler asked for four years to prepare his war, and Adenauer was elected for four years, too. . . . If the working classes would unite, they would be able to brush off this government of marionettes."

The stormy session, in which spokesman for every party from the Communists to the neo-Nazis, opposed immediate rearmament of Germany, was inspired by a series

Conolly to Keep European Post If Denfeld Refuses It

Admiral Richard L. Conolly will remain as commander of United States naval forces in European waters if Admiral Louis E. Denfeld refuses to accept the post, the Navy said yesterday.

Admiral Forrest P. Sherman, chief of naval operations, announced his November 9 statement to that effect still stands. He thus contradicted a Navy spokesman who said Thursday that Conolly would be transferred to the post of superintendent of the Naval Academy at Annapolis, no matter what Denfeld did.

Denfeld, ousted Chief of Naval Operations, is now on a 60-day leave and has indicated to friends that he will retire rather than accept a lower command.

Sawyer Denies Curb On Anti-Trust Work

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

Secretary of Commerce Charles Sawyer yesterday denied that his new monopoly and competition "educational" campaign implies any relaxation of vigorous enforcement by the Government of the antitrust laws.

In an announcement, he said that the new interagency committee, of which he is chairman, will have as its first job the framing of a policy to guide Federal agencies operating in the antitrust field, and work up a plan coordinating Federal activities in this area.

And, he added, the committee will examine and review existing legislation "including exemptions from the antitrust laws."

Supplement to Program

The program to be developed will be "a supplement to, and in no way a substitute for" vigorous enforcement to the antitrust laws, Sawyer said.

In a letter to Senator Kefauver (D., Ky.), made public yesterday, Sawyer reinforced the point. Kefauver had questioned whether the "educational" approach could meet all monopoly problems. Sawyer replied:

"I am in complete agreement with you that there are antitrust problems which cannot be dealt with by education."

Sawyer said the interagency body which he heads will be known as the "President's Committee on Business and Economic Relations." Other members are Attorney General Howard McGrath, acting chairman of the Federal Trade Commission Lowell B. Mason, and acting chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers Leon B. Keyserling.

Sabotage Now Possible

One phase of the committee's work, it was indicated by officials well informed of its plans, is an examination to see whether some Government agencies are unwittingly sabotaging the antitrust effort.

They said that Sawyer wants to be sure the Government's own house is in order. He would like to know:

1. Whether the Armed Forces have failed to set up procedures truly assuring small business a "fair proportion" of Government orders, as required by law.

2. Whether the regulatory agencies—mainly in the field of public utilities and transportation—consider monopoly factors in approving rates, routes, services and mergers.

3. Whether some present exemptions from the antitrust laws—as in the case of farm marketing agreements—hurt competition and restrict trade.

4. Whether small firms get the fullest possible consideration from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation when they need Government loans.

5. Whether the tax laws encourage big firms to gobble up little ones. For example, does the high inheritance tax encourage the owners of family businesses to sell out when they reach advanced age?

Business witnesses before various committees of Congress have tetified in recent months that each of those complaints is true in some degree, and Sawyer reportedly ran into the same protests frequently during his recent country-wide tours investigating business conditions.

Story Refuted

Truman Calls Eisenhower Good Friend

Key West, Fla., Dec. 16 (AP).—President Truman took occasion today to declare that he and Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower are "good friends and always have been."

And his press secretary, Charles G. Ross, voiced displeasure over recent stories out of Key West quoting intimates as saying Mr. Truman considers Eisenhower a candidate for the Presidency.

Ross said he did not know who these intimates were. Reporters who wrote the stories did not disclose the source.

"The President," Ross told a news conference at this submarine station presidential retreat, "wants it to go on the record that he and General Eisenhower are good friends and always have been."

To the pointed question: "Does the President regard General Eisenhower as a candidate?" Ross replied:

"I don't know what is in his mind. The President is not talking about it along those lines."

"Does the President object to Eisenhower running for President?" a reporter asked.

"The President has no objection to anybody running for anything," Ross replied.

Ross had just concluded a report on Mr. Truman's routine activities for the day. Then, his eye on a morning paper story out of Fort Worth quoting Eisenhower as saying no matter what anyone thinks, he is not a candidate for President, Ross asserted:

"The President desires to take notice of the Eisenhower story from Fort Worth. It looks from Fort Worth that General Eisenhower is being heckled, possibly embarrassed by some souped-up stories out of Key West to the effect that the President regards him as a contender for the Presidency.

"I can't imagine what foundation there is for the alleged stories. The President wants it on the record that he and General Eisenhower are good friends and always have been."

Ross told White House reporters:

"I want to say now that the President has not discussed with White House intimates the possibility of General Eisenhower being a candidate."

The President missed a morning swim for the first time since his arrival when the sun hid behind the clouds.

He did take a long walk with Presidential Secretary William D. Hassett.

Czech Reds Say U. S. Is Financing Vatican Spy Ring

Prague Dec. 16 (AP).—Three Czech authors charge in a new book on sale here today that the United States is paying the Vatican five million dollars a year to operate a spy ring.

The authors charge the United States arranged for the spy ring in 1946 after talks between Pope Pius and Myron C. Taylor, the President's personal representative in the Vatican.

Other accusations in the book were that Archbishop Josef Beran, adopted an "anti-state and treasonable attitude" because the Vatican promised to elevate him to a cardinal, and that Francis Cardinal Spellman, Archbishop of New York, is the tool of American "big money" and that he is going to demand to be the next Pope as reward for the "American dollars that have been poured into the Vatican treasury."

Revision of Rates Proposed to FCC By Western Union

Western Union Telegraph Co. yesterday proposed a top-to-bottom revision of its charges for interstate telegrams. Some rates would be raised, some cut.

The company said the changes are designed to wipe out geographical inequalities. It filed the proposed new rate schedule with the Federal Communications Commission and unless the FCC objects it will go into effect February 1.

FCC indicated its approval by saying that the proposed new rates are "a major step toward rationalization of the domestic telegraph rate structure."

The increases on straight message rates would range up to 18 cents. Reductions would be as much as 19 cents. So-called straight messages are telegrams other than day and night letter telegrams.

U. S. Embassy Staff Going Soon to Taipeh

The United States Embassy staff in China is preparing to follow the Nationalists to their new capital at Taipeh, Formosa. The State Department said yesterday Robert C. Strong, charge d'affaires, and several aides will go to Taipeh next week.

Anderson Out of Hoover Unit; Hits Policies

By the United Press

Dewey Anderson, director of the Public Affairs Institute, resigned yesterday from the Citizens Committee for the Hoover Report and denounced it as "no place for a liberal."

There also were reports that CIO and AFL representatives may withdraw.

The committee was organized last summer to support the recommendations of former President Herbert Hoover's Government reorganization commission.

Anderson said he joined it in the belief it was to be a "nonpartisan body seeking efficiency and economical operation" in Government. But he became "disillusioned and angry," he said, after hearing Mr. Hoover address a dinner meeting of the committee here last Monday.

Calls It "Old Line"

"It was Mr. Hoover's old line, right out of his campaign speeches for the Presidency," Anderson asserted. "He said just what the National Association of Manufacturers has been saying."

Anderson explained that he believes Mr. Hoover—and the leaders of the Citizens Committee—are looking beyond efficiency reforms and working for "limitations" on the scope of Government welfare and service programs.

Robert McCormack, spokesman for the citizens' committee, said Anderson's resignation had not yet been received.

"But if he is resigning for the reasons he gave the press, we're delighted to get his resignation," McCormack said.

"We don't want people on the committee who haven't the patience to sit down with those of opposite political views and try to work out a reorganization that will serve the best interests of everybody."

(Mr. Hoover reached at his New York hotel apartment and asked for comment, said: "I didn't even know Mr. Anderson was on the Citizens' Committee.")

Anderson said he and others who regard themselves as liberals are "100 in favor of operating the Government with as little waste as possible." At the same time, he said, they believe this should be done without cutting into the "substance" of New Deal and Fair Deal programs.

As an example of what he considers his differences with the committee, Anderson said he believes a broad extension of social security coverage and benefits is "imperative." If he understood Mr. Hoover correctly, he added, the committee yearns for a kind of government that "would not have let us have social security in the first place."

The Public Affairs Institute is a privately financed research organization established here in 1947. Sponsors include Gov. Chester Bowles of Connecticut, former assistant Attorney General Thurman Arnold, James G. Patton, president of the National Farmers Union, and President William P. Kennedy of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen.

O'Dwyer to Marry In Florida Tuesday

Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Dec. 16 (U.P.).—Mayor William O'Dwyer of New York today announced he would pull a "Barkley" and marry Fashion Stylist Sloan Simpson Tuesday morning in Stuart, Fla.

The announcement was made by the Mayor's New York office and confirmed by friends here.

Miss Simpson went aboard O'Dwyer's borrowed yacht Almar II here this morning and it upped anchor immediately.

Whether O'Dwyer was aboard was not known. Reports from the waterfront said he was. His office in New York said he was not, that he would not see his bride-to-be until the wedding.

O'Dwyer took Miss Simpson to the office of County Judge Arthur R. Clonts yesterday afternoon and applied for a license to wed.

Miss Simpson wore a gray jersey traveling suit, Judge Clonts said, apparently having rushed to the office immediately after arriving by train at Hobe Sound, 80 miles north of here, where O'Dwyer disembarked Monday.

They will be married at 8:30 a. m. Tuesday in St. Joseph's Catholic Church. The Rev. Timothy Geary, native of O'Dwyer's own County Mayo in Ireland, will officiate.

O'Dwyer listed his age as 59 and said he was a "lawyer." Miss Simpson said she was 33 and a "stylist."

The New York mayor arrived in Hobe Sound Monday to recuperate from exhaustion and a heart condition that had hospitalized him in New York.

O'Dwyer's wife, Catherine, died three years ago following a long illness. Miss Simpson divorced Carroll Dewey Hipp of Teaneck, N. J., on charges of mental cruelty in 1943. The marriage was annulled by the Catholic Church on the grounds Hipp was non-Catholic.

Waitress Left Riches by Man She Served

Chicago, Dec. 16 (AP).—A wealthy retired merchant, whose home for 25 years was a hotel room, willed his entire fortune to a waitress "who in my old age and last illness has really proven to be my friend."

Lucien G. Walker, 83, former head of the Walker Cotton Fabrics Co. here, left his estate, valued at more than $100,000, to Mrs. Leona M. Smith, 40, a waitress in the Morrison Hotel coffee shop.

The bequest was disclosed today when Walker's sisters-in-law both widows from Vicksburg, Miss., filed notice in probate court that they would contest the will.

The document bequeathing his estate to Mrs. Smith was signed December 4, five days before Walker died. It started, "I bequeath all my personal property to my friend, Leona M. Smith of Chicago, who in my old age and last illness has really proven to be my friend."

Mrs. Smith said Walker was "a lonely old man and I felt sorry for him." She, her husband, and their daughter called him "Uncle Jerry," she said, and had him as their guest on Sundays and holidays.

N. Y. Water Use Cut Succeeds

New York, Dec. 16 (U.P.).—The great unwashed millions of New York saved about 20 percent of their average home consumption of water today in the first "bathless Friday" in history.

The beards sprouted, the bathtubs were dry, the dishes piled up in the sinks and clotheslines were empty as the overwhelming majority of the city's eight million people joined gaily in a "water holiday" brought on by the grim fact that the metropolis was running dry.

The official figures on how much New York saved were not to be announced until 11 a. m. Saturday but a check of the rate of flow from one of the biggest reservoirs from midnight to 5 p. m. showed that the city was consuming less than 79 percent of the amount of water it used last Friday.

"The average figures for today indicate that the drive is a huge success," City Water Commissioner Stephen J. Carney said.

From Wall Street to the United Nations, from the Bowery to Park Avenue, beards were the sign of the time. The commuters on trains coming in from suburban towns were mostly clean-shaven, but on the city subways the men stole glances at each other and found bristles on all sides.

Most of the men who shaved used electric razors, and a majority of those who took baths were infants who had no vote in the matter.

If the city could achieve a 25-percent over-all saving, it would use approximately 150 million gallons of water less than it did last Friday—three times as much as the city of Atlanta consumes both industrially and domestically in a day.

At Lake Success, U. N. Secretary-General Trygve Lie confessed that he shaved with an electric razor but announced that he had gone without a bath.

Army barracks in the New York area reversed the normal procedure and gave demerits at inspection to soldiers who did not have stubby beards. An unhappy blonde college girl gave a reporter the woman's angle: "Not a woman in New York is going out necking tonight."

Sixth Crash Victim Dies At Bolling

The death toll in Monday night's airline crash rose to six yesterday when Philip Shapiro, whose sister was killed instantly in the tragedy, died at Bolling Air Force Base Hospital.

A 51-year-old partner in the Fashion Garment Co., 252 West 38th st., New York, Shapiro was the first of 19 persons pulled alive from the wreckage to reach the Boling crash ward.

Mrs. William Chertow, of Brooklyn, a sister who was returning home on the plane after attending the unveiling of another brother's tombstone at Norfolk, was one of four killed instantly when the Capital airliner belly-landed in the shallow Potomac River.

Took Turn for Worse

Shapiro, who lived at 225 Central Park West, New York, was admitted to Bolling Hospital with a fractured right ankle, fractured facial bones, concussions and shock. His condition improved after treatment and was said to be "fair" Thursday night. He took a sudden turn for the worse and died, with his wife at his bedside, at 5:05 a. m. Doctors said he had suffered "multiple crushing injuries."

His death was the second in two days at the Bolling crash ward, where all 19 survivors were given emergency treatment. George C. Harrison, a 47-year-old Government employe, of 5921 N. 16th st., Arlington, died Thursday without gaining consciousness.

Probers to Meet Thursday

Possible causes of the crash in Monday's heavy fog south of National Airport will be investigated by a Civil Aeronautics Board panel December 22.

Meeting at 9 a. m. in Room 500 of the District Building, 14th st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw., will be Russell A. Potter, chief of the Hearings Section of the CAB Bureau of Safety Investigation, presiding officer; Ervin N. Townsend, chief of the CAB Accident Investigation Division; Joseph O. Fluet, chief investigator of CAB Region I, which includes Greater Washington; George French, CAB meteorologist, and Jesse W. Lankford, chief of the CAB Accident Analysis Division.

Two Seized in Numbers Raid

Armed with a search warrant, vice squad detectives entered a basement apartment, at 1334 11th st. nw., at about 2:30 p. m. yesterday and arrested two men on numbers charges.

Arrested were James William Slater, 4th, 57, of the 11th st. address, and Malvin James King, 36, of 524 21st st. ne.

Both were charged with operating a lottery and possession of lottery slips. They were taken before United States Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence, who continued the case until next Wednesday. The men were freed in $1500 bond each.

Man Held in Bond In Sex Offense Charge

Gilbert S. Eaton, 32, of 425 D st. se., yesterday was held in $10,000 bond for the grand jury by Municipal Court Judge Armond Scott on charges of violating Public Law 615 which relates to sex offenses. An 8-year-old neighborhood boy was the principal witness against him.

Police quoted Eaton as saying he was on parole or probation in New York for similar offenses.

Sharman Douglas Denies Having Any Romance

Philadelphia, Dec. 16 (U.P.).—Sharman Douglas, 21-year-old daughter of the United States Ambassador to Great Britain, took a firm stand on romance today, but refused to get in on the controversy over Princess Margaret's low-cut gowns.

She stopped here today to help her aunt play Santa Claus for ill children at the Philadelphia General Hospital. When asked about rumors she might marry one of the British noblemen who have escorted her and the princess to London parties, she said:

"I have no romances in England, and none in the United States."

She wouldn't comment on the royal low-cut gowns.

3 Hiss Witnesses Dispute Chambers

In Coplon Case

Court Agrees To Deposition From Condon

New York, Dec. 16 (AP). — The defense in the Judith Coplon-Valentin Gubitchev spy case today won court permission to take a deposition from Dr. Edward U. Condon, director of the United States Bureau of Standards, on alleged Washington wiretapping.

Federal Judge Sylvester J. Ryan granted the request of Miss Coplon's attorney that Dr. Condon appear next Wednesday.

Archibald Palmer, the attorney, said Dr. Condon planned to leave for India next Thursday for a stay of several months.

Palmer said he would try to prove though the Government official that the FBI was "constantly using illegal wiretapping" in its investigations, particularly in the Nation's Capital.

The trial of Miss Coplon, former Justice Department employe, and Gubitchev, Russian engineer, is scheduled to begin December 27.

In a pretrial hearing, Palmer is trying to have the case thrown out on the ground it is based on illegal wiretapping evidence.

Miss Coplon and Gubitchev, a suspended United Nations engineer, are charged with conspiracy to get United States secrets for Russia.

Judge Ryan said he did not know whether Dr. Condon's testimony would be material, but that he would decide later. The judge emphasized he wanted all pretrial sessions ended by next Thursday.

Condon was named as "one of the weakest links in our atomic security" last year by the House Committee on Un-American Activities. He denied this and demanded an open hearing but has not received one. The Atomic Energy Commission later gave him a clean bill of health.

The FBI has admitted that the phones of Miss Coplon and Gubitchev were tapped. But it says the information obtained was not used to get indictments against them.

New York, Dec. 16 NYHT.—Two relatives of Alger Hiss — his brother Donald and his brother-in-law, Thomas Fansler—gave testimony at the second Hiss trial today in direct conflict with parts of the story told by Whittaker Chambers, the chief prosecution witness.

At the same time the story of how Alger Hiss disposed of his old Woodstock typewriter was thrown into new confusion when two other defense witnesses contradicted each other.

Fansler's testimony was part of the defense effort to prove that Hiss did not go to Peterborough, N. H., with Chambers on August 10, 1937. The incident has been used by the defense as a major attack against the credibility of Chambers as a witness. The incident is the only part of Chambers' story to which he assigns a specific date.

Chambers testified that he and Hiss left Washington together between 9 and 10 a. m. of August 9 and drove to Thomaston, Conn., where they spent the night. The following day, according to Chambers, they went to Peterborough, and stayed that night at Bleak House. They did not have dinner or breakfast there because no meals were served, Chambers said.

Fansler testified that on the morning of August 9 he was visiting the Hisses at Chestertown, Md., and they drove him to Wilmington, Del., to catch a train back to New York.

Fansler was preceded by Harry C. Coleman, cashier of the Kent County Savings Bank of Chestertown, whose records show that a check was deposited by Hiss there on August 10, 1937, and other checks drawn by him on August 9, 10, 11 and 12. He said he did not know whether the transactions were done in person or by mail.

Mrs. Lucy E. Davis, who operated Bleak House in 1937, said the house was opened as an inn on August 1 of that year. She also said she served meals there from the opening date on, and that she did not remember seeing either Hiss or Chambers. She said all guests registered, but her registry book did not bear the names of Hiss and Chambers.

Fansler also indicated that the Hisses spent New Year's Eve, December 31, 1936, at the home of Mrs. Flanders, sister of Mrs. Hiss, in Chappaqua, N. Y. This conflicts with the account given by Mrs. Chambers of a party in Washington on that date at which Mr. and Mrs. Chambers and Mr. and Mrs. Hiss were present in the Hiss home.

Donald Hiss, who has been accused by Chambers of having been a Communist and a fellow traveler, denied the accusations on the stand in the same words and with almost the same gestures his brother used in similar circumstances at the first trial.

He also denied that Alger Hiss had tried to persuade him to give the documents to Chambers or that he had ever done it.

The conflict in testimony between defense witnesses appeared when Benjamin E. Dement, official of the Potomac Electric Power Co., said his records showed that on Januray 17, 1938, electric service in the name of Raymond Catlett was turned off at 1270 25th st. and supplied to 2728 P st., Washington.

Previously Catlett had testified that he had lived at 2728 P st. since 13 or 14 years ago. and that they had no electricity for the first month or so because they could not afford the deposit.

The date is important because Catlett and his brother, Perry M. Catlett, contend that they had Hiss' typewriter in their house at 2728 P st. beginning some time before January 1, 1938. This is the typewriter on which some of the alleged spy papers were typed, according to uncontradicted Government testimony. The papers are all dated between January 1 and April 1, 1938.

Lie Planning Not to Seek 2d U. N. Term

Lake Success, Dec. 16 (NYHT). One of the world's key political jobs was thrown open for bids today, when Trygve Lie, United Nations Secretary General, announced in a 63-word statement that he was "not a candidate for reappointment."

In top delegations, the view was expressed that Lie was still available, and in fact, even likely to wind up with his five-year term extended after its February 2, 1951, expiration. This was based on the political difficulty of getting the needed America, Soviet, British, French and Chinese agreement for anybody else.

But there were other possibilities. Chief of these was Carlos P. Romulo of the Philippines, who won wide acclaim as president of the just-ended General Assembly; Luis Padilla Nervo of Mexico, a delegate who has earnestly sought conciliation, and Herbert V. Evatt, Australian Minister of External Affairs, whose party is just going out of power, but who might find Soviet distaste and might be too forceful even for the West.

The job pays $20,000 a year, net, being outside both the U. N.'s staff tax plan and national taxation, along with $20,000 in allowances, plus rent and maintenance of a home.

of statements attributed to Adenauer.

The chancellor has been quoted as favoring the use of German detachments in a West-European army, if other Western Powers decide it is necessary. He opposes formation of a new German national army.

The Communists started today's debate by asking for Adenauer's views on German rearmament. The chancellor himself replied "No" to five Communist questions intended to determine whether he favors German participation in a Western army.

The Committee of Elders, which three weeks ago suspended Socialist Leader Kurt Schumacher for calling Adenauer "the chancellor of the allies," decided after the disrupted Bundestag meeting not to take action against Reimann.

The uproar began when Reimann mounted the rostum at the end of a parade of speakers and launched into a searing denunciation of Adenauer and his whole regime.

Finally the House president arose, abandoned the chair and marched slowly out of the chamber.

Adenauer and deputies of the three government parties followed Koehler out of the House. Extreme Rightwing deputies joined the march, leaving the Socialists and Communists alone in the chamber.

Reimann, confronted by row on row of vacant desks, gave up and returned to his seat.

Heinrich Von Brentano, speaking for the government parties, said that "nobody in Germany is thinking of any rearmament," although he added that "Germany has the wish to become an equal partner in a United Europe, and is determined to serve peace and defend freedom."

that the toned down proposal probably would command considerable support.

Because of the last-minute switch in the resolutions before it, the Council is not expected to reach a vote on the new draft before Monday morning. The Soviet and Philippine delegations said they needed more time to study the matter.

The 1949 General Assembly decided a week ago to internationalize Jerusalem. The Council is charged with carrying out that decision.

Its chances of success are regarded as slim by observers because of the outspoken opposition of Israel and Hashemite Jordan, an Arab country, to the internationalization plan. Israel and Jordan now control in separate parts of Jerusalem.

Before the Council convened this afternoon an Israeli delegation spokesman made it clear there has been no change in the attitude of his government.

Power Plant Workers End London Strike

London, Dec. 16 (NYHT).—The strike of workers in three of London's power stations ended tonight. The walkout which began on Monday and nearly precipitated a general strike among workers in the capital's generating plants brought with it during the week power cuts, total blackout in some areas of London, and employment of servicemen in the struck stations.

The end came after talks lasting four and one-half hours between representatives of the British Electricity Authority and officials of the five trade unions concerned in the strike.

The strike began because workers were dissatisfied with an agreement which gave them a raise of about 1½ cents an hour in place of their usual 7.5 percent bonus over their basic wage.

Reds Claim Atom Smasher Tops U. S. Type

Berlin, Dec. 16 (U.P.).—The official Soviet News Bureau said today that Russia has perfected a new super atom smasher better than any used in the United States.

The new apparatus combines the principles of the cyclotron and the betatron, two types used in the United States, and is called the Syncortron, the News Bureau said.

"This new apparatus gives electrons much more energy than those created in betatrons," it was added.

(A leading American atomic scientist said that the Russian statement was "interesting" but that he was inclined to believe it was "just some more propaganda.")

The News Bureau statement was published in the newspaper Taegliche Rundschau, official organ of the Russian army of occupation, as Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky left for Moscow after a state visit to the new Soviet-sponsored East German government.

Abs Returns; Tells of Visit To America

Frankfurt, Germany, Dec. 16 (AP). Herman Abs, German banker and industrialist, returned here today after a three-week visit to the United States.

Abs said he made the trip to America "at the private invitation of some very good friends." He would not identify them.

Senator Gillette (D., Iowa) charged that Abs is a "known Nazi." He asked the State Department for information on the banker's visit.

Informed of Gillette's statement, Abs said today:

"If I was a Nazi, then everybody in Germany was a Nazi."

Abs is a director of the German reconstruction loan bank. It advances credits to firms and cities needing funds to build war-damaged industries and buildings.

The State Department was reported yesterday to have told Senator Gillette that Abs visited the United States to talk with creditors about money owed by German banks to American banks since 1931.

These debts must be settled before Germany can induce American private capital to invest again in German industries.

Abs said he talked with the American creditors committee in New York about the loans. He said the committee is composed of representatives of the American banks.

"I told them about the situation in Germany and the possibility of repayment," he said. "I could not make definite proposals because settlement of these questions is still reserved to the Allied High Commission, Germany has no authority as yet to make any decisions on prewar loans."

Abs said he also visited Washington. He left New York December 7 on a French liner, he said, and arrived in Le Havre yesterday.

Unanimous Vote

Soekarno 1st President Of Indonesia

Jogjakarta, Java, Dec. 16 (AP).—Dr. Soekarno today was elected first President of the United States of Indonesia—the independent nation for which he fought more than 20 years.

It took only 15 minutes for electors from all 16 states of the rich East Indian Island to choose him unanimously. He will be sworn in Saturday and will take over formally when the U. S. of I. comes into being as an equal partner of the Netherlands under the Dutch crown December 27.

Soekarno has been president, since 1945, of the Indonesian Republic, a Jogjakarta-seated government controlling parts of Java and Sumatra, two of the main islands. It is to have a major voice in affairs of the new nation.

Only a year ago, Soekarno was a prisoner of the Dutch. Parachute troopers had captured Jogjakarta and hurried him off into exile under a decree issued from the Dutch Governor General's palace in Batavia.

Now the tables are turned. The magnetic Republican leader is moving into the Dutch palace. It symbolizes the birth of a new nation for 70 million.

Like many Indonesians, Soekarno has no first name.

Mao, Chinese Red, Arrives In Moscow

London, Dec. 16 (AP).—Mao Tze-tung, military Boss of Communist China, has arrived in Moscow, the Moscow radio reported tonight.

A brief bulletin announcing his arrival did not give the purpose of his visit but leaders of many Communist nations are assembling in Moscow for celebrations of Prime Minister Stalin's seventieth birthday next Wednesday.

The broadcast said Mao was welcomed by Deputy Prime Minister V. M. Molotov, who is seldom in the public eye these days; Andrei Gromyko, Deputy Foreign Minister and Marshall N. A. Bulganin, among others.

Mao arrived from Peiping with "other persons," the radio reported, but did not identify them.

Ben-Gurion Speeds Move Of Capital

Tel Aviv, Israel, Dec. 16 (U.P.).—Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion today set New Year's Day for the transfer of government activities to the "eternal" Israeli capital of Jerusalem.

In a circular to all cabinet ministers, Ben-Gurion set January 1 as the deadline for completion of operations to transfer the "Hazirya"—seat of government—to the Jewish-held "new" part of the Holy City.

Ben-Gurion summond the cabinet to hold its first meeting in Jerusalem Monday.

He returned to Tel Aviv today after a visit to Jerusalem to speed up the transfer of government to the new capital.

Navy Is Cautioned To Honor Civilians

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

The Navy has ordered its officers and men here to be more alert about saluting top civilian Government officials, it was announced yesterday.

Admiral Forrest P. Sherman, Chief of Naval Operations, said he had issued a directive to all bureaus and offices of the Navy Department warning that the failure of naval personnel "to recognize and render proper military courtesies to officials of the Government entitled to such" has been commented upon unfavorably."

His statement followed publication of a story by Robert S. Allen in yesterday's Washington Post declaring that an unidentified Navy lieutenant recently ignored a greeting from President Truman while "on his morning stroll."

A Navy spokesman said officials have no knowledge of such an incident and denied that the order resulted from any insult to the President.

Preliminary Move

It was believed, however, that it was designed to forestall any such public evidence of the bitterness many Navy men feel toward top Administration officials as a result of the recent congressional row over defense policy.

"Basic purpose of the directive was to provide that naval personnel render proper hand salutes to all secretaries of the Military Establishment. Any further application of the directive to further officials depends on the knowledge of the individuals as to the identity of the officials."

This apparently means that all Navy men are supposed to recognize and salute Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson, Army Secretary Gordon Gray, Navy Secretary Francis Matthews and Air Force Secretary W. Stuart Symington.

Crommelin Not to Retire

Meanwhile, Capt. John G. Crommelin, Navy flier who blew the top off the Navy row, denied that he planned to retire if not promoted to rear admiral. Robert S. Allen, in the same story reporting the alleged presidential snub, said that Crommelin had told friends he would quit if not selected by the Navy promotion board.

Crommelin left last night to take up his new assignment on the West Coast. He was transferred and publicly reprimanded for his actions in bringing about the congressional probe of the controversy.

The stormy petrel of naval aviation has protested the public rebuke as contrary to Navy regulations. He also said in an interview with the United Press that he had received a cable from Admiral Arthur W. Radford, Pacific Fleet commander who led the congressional fight, denying that Radford planned to retire as reported.

In his directive to commanders here, Admiral Sherman said that "responsible officers are directed to indoctrinate their subordinates in the necessity for keeping their eyes open and for meticulous observance of the rule of military etiquette. Particularly, they must be alerted to encounters with Government officials in civilian clothes."

Postlude

Casadesus, Francescatti Heard Here

By Paul Hume

Zino Francescatti and Robert Casadesus returned to the Library of Congress last night in one of the great concerts of any season.

Last year these two giants of music were heard there playing together for the first time in Washington. Last night the French artists played sonatas by Faure, Casadesus and Beethoven. They opened with the A Major work of Faure, which was to our ears the finest playing we have heard them do, except for their equally astounding treatment of the Franck sonata.

Here is no question of one artist or the other being in the ascendancy. Music rules them both and the results are magnificent. The tremendous urgency of their feeling of the rapid movements was matched by the beauty of their work in the quiet section. It was a tremendous account of a lyrical passage of unmatched beauty.

Casadesus' own sonata, his second for violin and piano, was interesting as was his piano concerto heard here last month. Writing for two instruments instead of large orchestras makes the pianist-composer's ideas more easily followed. The music seemed attractive and well made but again not sufficiently new or original to imprint itself in one's mind.

Beethoven's A Major sonata, known as the "Kreutzer," closed the program. It was brilliantly played, as was the entire list. We find the music repetitious to the point where its great themes and striking rhythms lose their first impact by being insisted upon too long. All that great insight into music can do for a work was done by the two players last evening.

Inquiry Asked Into Navy List Of Promotions

NYHT News Service

A "full investigation" by the Senate Armed Services Committee of the disputed Navy promotion list from which the name of Capt. Arleigh A. Burke was stricken was demanded yesterday by Senator Styles Bridges, of New Hampshire, ranking Republican member of the committee.

Senator Bridges called for such a probe in a statement issued from his home at Concord, N. H., as reports circulated in Washington which added new fuel to the furor over the promotion list controversy. They included.

1. A report which spread yesterday in Navy circles that the elimination of Captain Burke's name was not the only change made in the list when it was sent back to the Navy selection board late last month.

2. Responsible sources confirmed another report that the name of Capt. Harold A. Houser was added to the revised list. Captain Houser, an aide in the office of Secretary of Defense Louis A. Johnson, was recently named top Defense Department liaison officer with Congress.

3. It was learned that the final promotion list as sent to President Truman also contains the names of Capt. Thomas B. Williamson, naval aid to Secretary Johnson, and Clark L. Green, former skipper of the Missouri, the President's favorite battleship. Both apparently were among the board's original selections. Capt. Richard P. Glass, aid to Secretary of the Navy Francis P. Matthews, was reportedly added to the list to replace Captain Burke.

Senator Bridges said he would insist, when the President sends the disputed list to the Senate for confirmation, that the Armed Services Committee make a searching inquiry into all the circumstances.

Senator Millard E. Tydings, Democrat, of Maryland, the committee chairman, said later, however, that the committee would follow "routine procedure" in handling the controversial promotion list.

Shah to Go to N. Y. Hospital for Checkup

By Ferdinand Kuhn
Post Reporter

The Shah of Iran plans to go into the New York Hospital next week for a one-week checkup at the end of his coast-to-coast American tour.

The young monarch complains of a sinus condition and a stomach disorder that bothered him before he started on his strenuous travels here. He is expected to reach New York from the West Coast Sunday evening and will enter the hospital Wednesday, according to present plans.

His last official engagements before going to the hospital will be a dinner on Monday with President Dwight D. Eisenhower of Columbia University and another on Tuesday as guest of the 11 American engineering firms that have mapped out Iran's seven-year development program.

Pestered Everywhere

It has been a strictly official tour, and the 30-year-old Shah has had little freedom to enjoy himself on his own except for a few days in San Francisco this week. One reason, an informed source said yesterday, was that publicity men and advertising men for American companies pestered him everywhere for open or implied indorsements of their products.

In Detroit they tried to get him to pose for an advertising picture at the wheel of a new car. In a New Jersey laboratory they tried to get him to make a recording for use on a radio commercial.

In Los Angeles the publicity agents descended like locusts on the Shah's entourage, wanting him to pose for his picture with this movie star or that—and he refused them all.

Fled in Self-Defense

In Sun Valley, Idaho, where he had hoped for a week of skiing, the commercializers pounced on him in such numbers that he fled in self-defense to San Francisco, for a few more or less informal days.

The happiest part of his trip, from his own point of view, was in the sunshine at Phoenix, Ariz., where the State and city gave him an official welcome and then left him time and privacy for riding, swimming and sightseeing.

He could have brought home trunks full of gifts from American companies, but politely returned each one because he felt acceptance of any of them would have been exploited by advertisers.

Has Won Prestige

The Shah will go back to Iran with new prestige for his country and personal good-will for himself, but with nothing tangible in the way of loans or other economic assistance. Neither the World Bank nor the Export-Import Bank is considering a loan to Iran as yet, it was learned yesterday.

The allocation and shipment of American arms to Iran under the military-aid program is not expected until well into the new year. The last session of Congress voted a total of 26 million dollars in military aid for Iran, Korea and the Philippines, but the Iranians do not yet know how much of this total, or what kind of help, they can expect.

Court Hears Arguments on Assessments

Annapolis, Md., Dec. 16 (AP).—The Court of Appeals today deferred action on the way Maryland determines "full cash value" of property in its continuous assessment plan.

Declining to decide the weighty question on short notice, the State's highest tribunal recessed after a hearing and postponed its decision, perhaps until after it reconvenes January 10.

To keep the tax program from falling into a temporary vacuum, the court at the same time ordered Calvert County to abide by the plan for the present.

Chief Judge Ogle Marbury, in an order of the court, directed the Calvert County Commissioners to proceed with a reassessment of property in their First District on the basis of 1944 market values.

The commissioners, in what Attorney General Hall Hammond called "the 1949 civil tax war," have refused to make the reassessments on the ground they would be unfair.

In its order, the Appellate Court told the county commissioners to "give forthwith the notices" of assessment to First District taxpayers, "as proposed by the Supervisor of Assessments."

The assessment officer had followed instructions of the State Tax Commission to evaluate property on the basis of what it would have been worth in 1944.

During the first five years of Maryland's continuous assessment plan, 1941-42 values were used as a guide. The Tax Commission held postwar values were artificial.

This year assessors were advised to gear their appraisals to 1944 values. Assessments jumped 30 percent in Calvert County's First District. The commissioners, final tax authority in the county, rejected the proposed reassessments.

Circuit Judge John B. Gray, jr., ruled they were right.

The Court of Appeals declared today, in effect, that it has no conclusive opinion yet on the subject. In the meantime, the commissioners should mail out the new assessment notices, based on the 1944 market level, for 1950 taxes.

Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co. yesterday tried in vain to get a District Public Utilities Commission expert to revise upward his recommendation for an 8.75 percent average increase in local rates.

The company's attorney, William G. Gassaway, cross-examined V. A. McElfresh, PUC executive accountant, during the morning session and in the afternoon, I. G. Rector, assistant comptroller of the C & P companies, presented rebuttal testimony.

McElfresh stuck by his view that the company's rate of return should be set at 6 percent, rather than the 7 requested. The latter would involve a 13-percent average boost in rates.

The hearing will resume Monday at 1 p. m. in Room 203 of the District Building with cross-examination of McElfresh by Attorney John J. Kirby of the General Services Administration.

The principal difference between the PUC man and the firm was on whether the new rate should be based on company earnings during a six-month test period or, as the firm suggested, known increased costs effective in 1950 should also be considered.

McElfresh said that if the test-period theory was shelved, and forecasting replaced it, other items such as the possibility of increased business also should be included.

Rector said the firm will have to pay out $65,250 more for increased employe pension, disability and death benefits, and $45,900 more for increased Federal old-age-benefit taxes in 1950.

In addition, the firm may have to pay $39,026 in gross-receipts taxes on directory advertising sold in 1949 and a similar amount for 1947 advertising sales if the courts so decide. The District Board of Tax Appeals has ruled in favor of the company, but the city has appealed, Rector warned.

Rector also disagreed with McElfresh's failure to consider a $113,702 item for changeovers in lines and $29,000 for cost of telephone plants under construction. McElfresh argued the former is non-recurring and the latter is credited with 5-percent interest outside the rate base.

Rector emphasized the company is building extensively to meet post-war demand and the lag until such structures are included in rate cases is costly to the firm's revenues. He said "the more phones we add, the higher the cost of each telephone will be."

The Progressive Citizens' Association of Georgetown presented a statement asking the PUC to consider several relationships between the C & P and its parent, American Telephone & Telegraph Co., in making its decision. The statement was read by Raymond M. Wilmotte, consulting radio engineer.

James H. Flanagan, PUC chairman, was the sole commission member present at yesterday's hearing. President Truman has not yet appointed a second member to replace James Lauderdale, who resigned.

10 Guilty in Fairfax Tax Cases

Failure to file returns on their 1948 Virginia State income tax yesterday resulted in suspended $20 fines for 10 residents of Fairfax County.

All pleaded guilty in Trial Justice Court, Fairfax. They were charged with neglecting to answer a summons issued by the county revenue commissioner's office to explain why they had not filed 1948 State income tax returns this year. Each paid $5.75 court costs.

According to Walter L. Buckley, Chief Deputy Commissioner of Revenue, the 10 residents now have filed their reutrns. Buckley said he believed they would be the last delinquent taxpayers to be brought into court. Similar sentences already have been given several others.

The Commissioner of Revenue's office cracked down on tax delinquents last month, after the State Department of Taxation asked the county to help clear up its delinquent list.

Those handed suspended sentences yesterday by Judge Harry L. Carrico were: R. F. Etter, Vienna; Nathanial Copeland, Route 4, Alexandria; Elmo Pyton, Route 2, Alexandria; Monroe Blevins, Route 2, Fairfax; Grover G. Glass, Route 5, Alexandria.

Radical-Socialists Yield to Bidault Demand on Budget

Paris, Dec. 16 (NYHT).—Radical-Socialists, the stubborn Liberals who have defied Premier Georges Bidault in a touch-and-go battle on the 1950 budget, yielded tonight to the Premier's demand for an urgent consideration of the 2,275,000,000,000-franc government expense sheet.

As a result of a 24-to-16 vote by the finance committee, the National Assembly is scheduled to start debating the record budget Monday morning. In the meantime, the committee and the Bidault cabinet will endeavor to find means of filling a 20-billion-franc budget hole.

Police Investigation

Police Superintendent Barrett has not remained indifferent to the charges made during the Acalotti trial that three members of the Police Department have been taking gambling payoffs. Inspector Wallrodt sat in on the trial and reportedly is conducting an investigation for Major Barrett. Moreover, United States Attorney Fay has conferred with Major Barrett about the charges. All this is encouraging. The suspicion of graft in the Police Department is, of course, so serious that any attempt to slough it off or whitewash it would be gross neglect of duty.

But no agency in or out of Government is competent to investigate itself. There is too much chance for cover-up, for considerations of personal friendship. Especially is this true where the reputation of the Police Department is at stake. This is the compelling reason why there ought to be an independent investigation by an outside body. One appropriate body, as we have noted, is the House District Subcommittee investigating law enforcement in Washington. But the District government also ought to have some means of impartial check on the Police Department. One such procedure might be for the District Commissioners to request Chief Judge Laws of the District Court to suggest a committee of disinterested citizens to get the facts.

Indonesian Republic

The United States of Indonesia, born in large measure through the good offices of the United Nations, will be denied any blessing on its birth by the U. N. Security Council as a result of another of the Soviet Union's vetoes. Both the Security Council and the General Assembly voted overwhelmingly to indorse the settlement of the Dutch-Indonesian conflict, to congratulate both sides on their tolerance and statesmanship and to welcome the new republic into the fellowship of sovereign and independent states. But the Russians have chosen to label this immensely constructive achievement in peacemaking a mere extension of imperialist exploitation. No doubt this presages obdurate Soviet opposition to the inclusion of Indonesia in the United Nations.

The Russian obstruction is a misfortune. It is also a naked revelation of Russian purposes and as such may prove a most salutary eye-opener to the peoples of Asia. The United States of Indonesia will thrive without Soviet support. We trust that it will receive all possible assistance from the United States of America, whose representative, Merle Cochran, played a brilliantly creditable part in the negotiations between the Indonesians and the Dutch resulting in their agreement upon equal and independent status under the Netherlands crown.

This kind of settlement by mutual agreement was apparently not what the Russians wanted at all. They are not, as they have pretended to be, the friends of independence in Asia. They are interested in their own brand of imperialism and only those native movements which are Communist-led and which will serve as Soviet puppets can count on Soviet support. They can rail at but they cannot disrupt the genuine independences of the Indonesians. And the more they rail, the more they disclose the negativism and the narrow self-interest of their policy.

Caribbean War Talk

Saber-rattling has no place in the Americas, and Secretary of State Acheson has done well to remind the Dominican Republic of this basic principle. President Trujillo had requested the Dominican Congress to grant him the extraordinary power to declare war against any country tolerating military forces for invasion of the Dominican Republic. Probably the request was intended more for effect than anything else. But the appeal was a particularly blatant violation of the code by which American nations have forsworn arms in their relations with each other.

Undoubtedly President Trujillo had some provocation for his action. A good many persons in the Caribbean area detest the Dominican dictator and would like to see him overthrown. Several freebooting expeditions have been organized, not without help from other governments, and tales persist of the activities of the Caribbean Legion. These self-appointed crusaders are no less open to condemnation than is Trujillo's brand of intimidation.

But if President Trujillo has evidence that a plot is being hatched against his country, there is adequate international machinery to deal with it. The settlement of such disputes is one of the primary missions of the Organization of American States and the Inter-American Commission on Methods for the Peaceful Solution of Conflicts. Indeed, the Dominican Republic has availed itself of these facilities in the past. The resort now to threats of war can only serve to weaken the whole inter-American system and injure the Dominican Republic's position in the eyes of its neighbors.

Steel Price Hikes

Under a system of free competition, the United State Steel Corp. has the undoubted right to raise prices if it chooses, and it is under no compulsion to defend its action. Nevertheless, the public no longer regards the heads of large corporations as mere managers of valuable properties operated in the interest of the owners. They have come to look on them as combining the functions of private entrepreneurs with those of guardians of the public welfare. Consequently, they conclude that prices should be adjusted with regard for their effect on the general economy as well as on company profits.

Significant evidence of this new concept of the responsibilities and obligations of the managerial heads of large industrial concerns is afforded by Senator O'Mahoney's demand for an investigation of the reasons for increases in United States Steel prices. He jumps to the conclusion that the rise in prices is unjustified because the high level of profits makes it possible, he thinks, for the company to obtain fair profits without saddling the public with the cost of the new pension system and other increases in operating costs. There is no way of determining whether Senator O'Mahoney is right in assuming that these additional costs ought to be absorbed by big steel until more information is available. Unfortunately, President Fairless has not stated the total amount of the cost increases that are said to necessitate higher price. Nor has he indicated how much of the increase is due to the pension system.

We think it would have been wise for the company to lay its cards on the table and let the public be the judge of the issue. For it seems highly probable that Big Steel can offer a strong defense of its price-increase policy, since the pension system imposes heavy charges on industry. For example, it would cost United States Steel about 80 million dollars annually for the next 35 years to build up during that period reserves sufficient to take care of past service liabilities and to provide for future requirements. While we do not know whether the company has made an allowance of this size for pension costs, it is undeniably entitled to do so. In fact, it would be warranted in making much more generous annual provision for past liabilities, if it were able and willing to do so.

In any case, the pension plan has created huge liabilities for all the steel companies, and these are a proper charge against operating costs. Failure to make adequate allowance for such costs would not only falsify the company's profits and loss statements but also jeopardize pension payments. The steel industry has a record of ups and downs that emphasizes the necessity of setting up acturially sound systems that will take care of pension payments in bad times as well as in prosperous years. United States Steel is no exception to this rule of making provision in good times for the lean years that may lie ahead, and its long-range earning capacity rather than the profits received in a period of peak production is the proper basis for determining whether the company is justified in shifting the cost of the pension system to the public in the form of higher prices. For, unlike wage increases which depend on current profits, pensions are recurrent charges that cannot be discontinued without repudiating solemn obligations.

No-Quorum Rule

Solicitor General Perlman has added an interesting new wrinkle in the Christoffel case which was decided by the Supreme Court last June and has since been a subject of much controversy. The court reversed Harold Christoffel's conviction of perjury before the House Committee on Education and Labor on the ground that the Government had failed to prove beyond reasonable doubt that a majority of the committee was physically present when the offense was committed. The opinion seemed incredible at the time and led to movements in both houses of Congress to redefine their rules so that they could not possibly be thus misinterpreted. In a similar case now before the court, however, Mr. Perlman has asked that the 5-to-4 Christoffel decision be overruled. In the course of his argument he told the court that a Department of Justice investigation has shown that a quorum was present when Mr. Christoffel lied by saying that he was not a Communist.

Whether or not it is possible to try Mr. Christoffel again, since his conviction was reversed on a flimsy technicality, it is clear that the rule which the court attempted to impose on Congress will have to be corrected in some fashion. The Constitution gives both the Senate and House complete authority to make their own rules of procedure. This was not questioned by the slim majority in the Christoffel case—a majority which Justice Jackson has questioned by showing that Justice Douglas was away when the opinion was handed down, leaving the court divided 4-to-4 at that time. The late Justice Murphy and those who stood with him believed that they were giving force to a rule that the House had duly adopted. But it has long been the practice of the House not only to assume that a quorum once established remains present until the issue of no-quorum is raised, but also to disregard any question as to a quorum being present when testimony is being taken. In other words, custom approves the taking of testimony with only one or two members of a committee present. To require a majority of committee members to be present to hear witnesses in committees and a majority of all members to be present on the floor when business is transacted, would make it utterly impossible for Congress to meet its obligations as a national legislature.

This newspaper has repeatedly urged Congress to establish rules giving protection against harassment to citizens who appear before its committees. But in no event could Congress accept the Supreme Court's interpretation of its quorum rule as a working basis. If the court clings to the Christoffel decision, Congress will be forced to lay down in writing rules to which it has long adhered in practice.

Debts And Devaluation

The problem of Britain's World War II debt still remains unsolved. The British continue to release large amounts of so-called sterling balances, representing that debt, for expenditures in dollar areas as well as in the sterling area. The International Chamber of Commerce points out that balances released for use in dollar areas result in drains on Britain's limited dollar reserves, while releases for use in the sterling area result in so-called unrequited exports. In other words, where British exports are paid for by releasing blocked sterling, there are no compensating imports. Consequently, part of the dollar aid given the British merely replaces funds transferred to creditor countries. We are, in short, helping the British to liquidate their war debts.

The International Chamber of Commerce estimates that 356 million pounds of blocked balance were released in 1947 and 1948 and says that a substantial proportion of this total represented a draft of dollars from the sterling area dollar pool. It is estimated that the remaining balances amount to more than three billion pounds. Even at the devalued rate for the pound, that is a tremendous figure. These debts should be drastically scaled down and funded. Indeed, the United States should have made extension of ECA aid contingent on a debt settlement plan that would have prevented creditors from undermining the effectiveness of the program by the methods indicated.

However, the problem is political as well as economic. India and Pakistan, Britain's heaviest creditors, are in urgent need of funds to pay for essential imports. If Britain were forced to suspend or drastically curtail the release of balances owing to these creditors, it would result in hardships that would make them easier prey of Communist propagandists. While we agree with the International Chamber of Commerce that releases have been much too large and think that the United States and Great Britain should get together to work out a debt settlement, we also believe that such a settlement will have to be coupled with extension of dollar aid to countries, such as India and Pakistan, depending on sterling releases to finance essential imports.

Such an arrangement would open up markets for American goods at the expense of British products, but it would at the same time increase the pressure on the British to find markets in dollar areas. It would also have the disadvantage from the British viewpoint of loosening the tenuous ties that link the British with states that were formerly part of the empire. But the hard fact is that Britain cannot finance her overseas ventures indefinitely at the expense of the American taxpayer. Conversations are reportedly being held here by representatives of the United States, Britain and Canada to consider a program of joint aid for the Middle East and southern Asia which, no doubt, would mean that the United States would be the major contributor. Such a program would enable the United States to maintain direct contacts with the countries that we are now indirectly assisting. It would also remove the only persuasive argument for delaying debt settlement, thereby encouraging stabilization of the pound sterling.

Revolt Against "Me-Too"

A Michigan member of the Republican National Committee, Arthur E. Summerfield, says his party should have a program "clearly and unmistakably in opposition" to that now offered by the Democrats. We can think of no more effective device for alienating voters and giving aid and comfort to the Administration than a negative approach of this sort. The Republican Party does not have to choose between a program of blind opposition and a so-called me-too program patterned along Democratic lines. It can render a great public service and attract voters by discriminating criticism of policies that endanger the system of free enterprise or impose excessive taxation on the people. But it must offer positive programs of action as alternatives to policies it condemns and have the courage to support reasonable welfare programs that meet public needs without endangering the economic and political institutions of this country.

To shy away from advocacy of all policies bearing a Democratic label, without first subjecting them to tests of soundness, would be a politician's trick that would discredit the Republicans and lose them votes instead of attracting popular support.

Jordan's Story

It seems to me that Major Jordan confesses to some very grave violations of security in his story about Harry Hopkins. He says that in a long-distance telephone call to the Russian Embassy in Washington, a man purporting to be Mr. Hopkins came in on the call and he (Major Jordan) discussed official business with him and accepted orders given him over the phone. Jordan had never met Hopkins and therefore he could not have had any assurance that it was Mr. Hopkins not being familiar with Hopkins' actual voice.

I do not know of any competent officer who would have discussed official matters, or accepted out of channels orders on such a call without first checking its authenticity. There is no indication in Jordan's story that he did this.

From my own experience: I was senior night duty officer in the headquarters of the European Theater of Operations one night in the autumn of 1943. Our switchboard operator called me sometime after midnight with a call from 10 Downing Street. A pleasant voice identified itself as Mr. Churchill's secretary and stated that the Prime Minister desired to obtain information concerning the arrival in England of a certain highly placed United States official.

I replied very courteously that, after all, the person calling was only a voice to me and asked if I could be permitted to call back to make sure it was not (1) a gag, (2) a trap by our own security officers, or (3) some unauthorized person. I then called 10 Downing Street on a "scrambler" phone and was put through to Mr. Churchill's secretary. It was the same person who called me and I gave the desired information. Further, I was told that Mr. Churchill (who seemed to be in the room when the calls were made), instead of being annoyed at the several minutes delay, expressed his pleasure at the security precautions observed in the United States headquarters.

Nonpolitical Health Plan

For years patients have pleaded for low-cost self-help in prepaying the bankrupting burdens of childbearing, catastrophic illness and malignant disease. Organized medicine solemnly pledged to meet this challenge of its survival as a free profession. We realized default would mean the unpredictable servitude of bureaucratic regimentation. Yet the interim session of our American Medical Association has met the crisis by telling desperate patients the remedy still is "on order." We the healer comfort the sick with the grim solace that our war chest is refilled. No wounds will be healed until our political enemies are humbled in the dust.

Our patients want healing! They are disgusted with the false promises of the politicians and the smug reaction of those who would muddle through. Low cost, risk-sharing, self-help against bankrupting health hazards has no business being a political issue. Our Blue Cross hospitalization plans and our Blue Shield medical service plans are solvent low-cost protection against bankrupting liabilities. To remain solvent they must discriminate against poor risks, the aged, the extraordinary catastrophe and those with existing need.

National financing of such limited liability (childbearing, catastrophic illness and malignant disease) would give these voluntary plans the social sufficiency they lack. A sensible compromise suggests itself: Have the Federal Government guarantee a low-cost, noncancellable, nondiscriminating, limited liability hospitalization-medical service policy available to all at identical cost with identical benefits. The solvent would pay full fair cost of premiums; the marginal economic group would pay part-cost, with tax subsidy to pay premiums of the indigent and semi-indigent. The present Blue Cross and Blue Shield could be designated by the respective States to sell policies, to collect premiums, to make contracts with doctors and hospitals and to certify vouchers for payment for all services and facilities.

With a little good-will and sincerity on both sides we can take national health security insurance out of politics.

"FHA's New Ruling"

In your December 5 editorial, "FHA's New Ruling," you make the statement, "Although this newspaper deplores any form of racial or religious discrimination, it realizes that local customs and prejudices responsible for such discrimination can be broken down only by degrees."

The attempt to correlate the policies of nonsegregation with any other form of democracy results only in confusion and contradiction as democracy advocates individuality in all things. Is it possible to recognize individual and religious differences but not racial differences without contradicting the issue? Is the great struggle of humanity, throughout all history, to preserve and protect racial identity, traditions and customs to be construed as prejudice, segregation and discrimination?

The Negro race advocates and sanctions nonsegregation. By this admission are we to understand that the Negro race wishes to deny itself; that there is nothing of itself that it wishes to retain apart from the influence and beliefs of other races? This is hard to believe if the Negro race does not wish to become extinct.

Railroad Duplication And Waste

The article in your December 5 issue by Elisha M Friedman captioned "Rail Rates, ICC Policy and Featherbed Rules," has been read with a great deal of interest.

I am in complete agreement with Mr. Friedman with regard to his observations concerning so-called featherbed rules of the railroads. However, all of his observations are not so accurate. In the last four decisions of the Interstate Commerce Commission involving applications of the railroads for increased freight rates, the commission has authorized the railroads to increase substantially their freight rates; this in the face of testimony of shipper witnesses that higher freight rates tend to drive traffic from the rails to other forms of transportation. The increases authorized by the commission in the recent general freight rate case, pyramided on top of others, so far as coal is concerned, not only having driven coal from three railroads but has caused buyers and consumers of fuel to convert to natural gas and fuel oil.

Mr. Friedman points out that the rate of return for the railroads during the four years 1945-1948 was about 3.6 percent, but he does not mention the fact that the Sante Fe Railroad, whose stock is now selling at less than $100 a share, is paying $6 a share dividend plus extras; that the Chesapeake & Ohio common stock, now selling for less than $30 a share, is paying $3 a share dividend; that Kansas City Southern, which is selling for around $45 a share, is paying a $4 a year dividend; that Louisville & Nashville stock, now selling for less than $35 a share, is paying in excess of $3.50 a year dividend; and many other railroad companies are likewise returning to their stockholders handsome dividends.

The big distinction between the public utility company which, as Mr. Friedman accurately observes, is assured a fixed rate of return, and the railroads which, since 1933 have not been definitely assured a fixed rate, is that in the case of public utility companies there is no duplication of facilities. It would be useless to attempt to compare any increases in the cost to ultimate consumers of transportation by rail and rates charged by utility companies, because everyone knows that the transportation charges have increased by many times the rate of public utility companies.

If the railroads would agree voluntarily or were forced by some proper authority to eliminate duplicate facilities and the consequent waste that goes therewith, the railroads would be in much better condition as a whole than they are today.

A comparison of the records of the Interstate Commerce Commission on railroad officials who are earning more than $10,000 a year with the salaries of public utility companies should afford very interesting reading for Mr. Friedman.

One must stipulate, however, with Mr. Friedman that some of the railroads' competitors are unduly subsidized. Certainly without holding any brief for the automobile, bus or highway truck, it is a well known fact that the Federal and State taxes on gasoline are not only used for the building and maintenance of highways, but that many of these funds are diverted and used for general expenses by both the Federal Government and the States.

Certainly the railroads cannot continue to operate their passenger business at a deficit ranging between 500 and 600 million dollars a year and expect freight traffic to offset this deficit, and in addition accord the railroads a rate of return on total valuation of their property comparable to rates of return realized by public utility companies. The utility companies have no segment of their customers which purchases utility company service at a loss.

The answer to the railroad problem today is not increases in either freight rates or passenger fares, but rather an exploration by them as to how efficiency can be improved and duplicate service and waste eliminated. Should they, after further dispensation of a reasonable length of time, continue to show no improvement in this direction, then their voluntary discretion should be replaced by a mandate of the proper governing tribunal.

World View In Capsule

By Malvina Lindsay

Experts' Reports

IN SEARCH of a quick broadening of my world viewpoint, I buttonholed several returning wandering minstrels—I mean legislators, for easy lessons.

"What about British health insurance?" I shouted at Senator Gadd, as he was hurrying to speak at a luncheon, on, "Whither Europe?"

"You mean socialized medicine?" he shot back. "It's the biggest threat the world faces next to Stalin. There are simply no baldheads in Britain. Every ninth man and seventeenth woman is wearing a free wig. As to false teeth——"

"Wait," I interrupted. "How, as a trained observer—I assume—did you collect, sift and evaluate evidence?"

"What? Oh, I talked to several big doctors. By the way, I met a close friend of Winston Churchill's. See you later. I've got a real story for you about what socialism's done to British plumbing."

I next cornered Representative Stepp who was preparing a statement on "What Europe Should Do Next." "British health insurance," he declared, "has been grossly libeled by Tory propagandists——"

"Just a minute. I suppose as a trained observer you visited a lot of clinics?"

"Well-er I was a little rushed. But I talked to leading members of the Labor government."

I DASHED away to intercept Representative Flitt, who last month surveyed the Far and Middle East. "The situation in China is urgent!" he declaimed. "As I have said time and again in Congress, we must tell those Chinese Reds where to get off."

"Did you see General MacArthur?"

"Yes, and while I cannot quote him, I'm convinced he sees eye to eye with me."

Just then I spied Senator Furlong, who had surveyed Greenland, the North Pole, Manchuria, Japan, India, Indo-China, Afghanistan, Graustark.

"All Asia is going Communist, and there's nothing we can do to stop it," he announced.

"Did you see General MacArthur?"

"Yes, and while I can't quote him, I'm sure he agrees absolutely with my views."

Wanting the Spanish situation clarified in a jiffy, I hunted up Senator Buckram, who had looked into that as well as the workings of the Marshall Plan and the administration of Germany. "We should back Spain to the hilt" he insisted. "I'm even surer of it than when I left. Why, I talked to Franco myself. The man's a nice guy.

Shortly afterward I ran into Representative Gimlet, who also had flown into Spain for a few days: "Franco's dictatorship is sitting on a powder keg," he declared. "It's just as I said before I left—if we'd back Spain, all Europe would turn against us."

SENATOR SPUDD, my next authority, had been to all the Marshall Plan countries, also dipped into North Africa. "You must be very tired," I commiserated, "what with all your background study, and then having to poke around in so many places to check up on things."

"We did well to hit the capitals," he sighed. 'But we did visit some DP camps. And, say, those people are eating three meals a day!"

"Is the Marshall Plan working?"

"Say, those foreigners don't appreciate what we're doing. They don't like Americans. They're all Socialists, leftwingers or half-Communists. As I've always said, we should pull out of Europe lock, stock, and barrel."

However, Senator Rover, a member of the Spudd party, came by just then. "Stalin would take over Europe tomorrow if we stopped ECA!" he declared.

Somewhat baffled, I shifted to native soil. I found Representative Trumpet, who had been touring his district.

"The voters are arising as one man," he declared, "to demand an end of this bureaucratic dictatorship that is taking us straight down the road to socialism. I'm telling you the voice of the grassroots will be heard in 1950."

Shortly afterward, I encountered Senator Bray just back from his district. "The American voters," he orated "are rising as one man to demand the end to this exploitation by selfish interests that is taking us straight down the road to monopoly dictatorship. I tell you, the grass-rooters are on the march. Just watch 1950!"

Secrecy's Cloak

Atomic Discussions With Britain

THE OLD saying about war being too important to entrust to the generals goes also for the preparation for the kind of security that may prevent war. That is, in effect, the warning of the Committee for Economic Development which has brought out a highly important report on the vast new peacetime program for America's defense.

Childs

Of course, the committee was saying more than that. They were saying that even though it is necessary to spend billions of dollars for military security, the basic ideals of our democracy must never be lost sight of. Above all, two fundamentals:

1. Civilians must exercise the final controls.

2. The people must be kept informed lest barriers of military secrecy conceal changes profoundly altering the American way of life.

If the committee had wanted a perfect example of the hush-hush attitude and how it cloaks decisions the average citizen may be entirely unaware of, they might have pointed to the atomic talks with Great Britain. Here is the story in more detail than has yet been printed.

LAST SUMMER when the question of sharing information and techniques with Great Britain came to a focus, President Truman reached a major decision. First, he decided there should be a full atomic partnership with Britain. Second, and equally important, he decided the American public should be fully informed about the issue and what it meant. The American people were to be told, short of actual technical information, what we had to give and what we had to gain.

Chairman David Lilienthal heartily seconded this position. He felt that there could be no doubt about the decision if the people were given the facts; that is to say, if Britain's true role were made plain.

In the first closed meeting in Blair House, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower took more or less the same position. He was for full atomic partnership with the British.

But shortly thereafter other forces were brought to bear on the White House. It was at this time that Senator Bourke B. Hickenlooper was pressing his charges of "fantastic mismanagement" against Lilienthal and the commission; charges later repudiated by a majority of the Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee.

Before that committee, Eisenhower, Lilienthal and others immediately concerned with the atomic talks argued the issue. After Eisenhower had stated his position, Hickenlooper wagged his finger at him:

"What you say may be true militarily, General. But you don't think for a moment, do you, that the American people will stand for it? We have to consider public opinion."

UNHAPPILY, Eisenhower at this point backed down. He allowed as how he didn't know what the public would think since he wasn't, like Hickenlooper, an expert in those matters.

The same kind of pressure was used on the President. He was warned that any public discussion would bring down the Hickenloopers with thunders of wrath and behind them the inflamed American public. This line was taken, it is reported, by Atomic Commissioner Lewis L. Strauss, who in commission meetings has shown a marked animus against Britain and in favor of all possible secrecy.

President Truman was reluctantly persuaded that perhaps it would be best not to risk letting the public in on the significance of the discussions. As a result, they have been going on in strictest secrecy with only the barest formal announcement.

One consequence is that in the surcharged atmosphere of hush-hush say nothing, the leak and the inspired story take on an exaggerated importance. A week ago stories appeared, which must obviously have been inspired by what we call in this business as "authoritative source," saying the United States would reach an agreement with Britain but only on the basis that all atomic weapon manufacturing take place on this side of the Atlantic.

Contrary to a later inspired story, which held that the talks were practically concluded, this came at an indeterminate stage when the British negotiators had gone home for further consultation with London. There were those who felt that this ultimatum would wreck the discussions.

While few realize it, on these talks the whole future relationship of this country with Britain and the commonwealth can turn. In the murky fog of secrecy our future can be determined without even a voice being raised in protest or in praise.

do is to take the issue to the country in the next campaign," he said. "Perhaps that is the best way to handle it."

While not completely ruling out early action on compulsory health insurance, Murray went almost as far as Senator Hubert Humphrey (D., Minn.), who recently said the health measure isn't yet in "the legislative action stage." Humphrey was sharply criticized by the labor press for his statement.

Still Favors Truman Bill

Murray, one of the few 100 percent Roosevelt Democrats remaining in the Senate, said he still enthusiastically favored the Administration's compulsory health insurance plans as opposed to the various compromise proposals offered.

He said he disagreed with Senator Paul H. Douglas (D., Ill.), who recently proposed a compromise covering only those medical costs in excess of $150 a year, in the "catastrophe" class. Murray said it was his opinion that the ordinary run of medical expenses led up to "catastropes," and all should be covered.

Murray said the Senate has passed practically all of the Truman health program "except this big one" and predicted it too will pass "after the issue is taken to the country."

Explaining why he did not plan to take the stump against Taft, Murray said:

"The people in the west and in my State (Montana) feel issues ought to be decided largely within the States. They like speakers from outside to come into the State, but don't think they should come there just to beat someone."

Operators Ignored

Truman Cool On Lewis Prosecution

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

President Truman, in sunny Key West, yesterday gave a chilly reception to a plea from Southern coal operators that he invoke the Taft-Hartley Act against John L. Lewis' miners.

"You can count on it. The appeal will be ignored," commented a White House aide.

The appeal for a Taft-Hartley injunction to force the United Mine Workers to work a full week, instead of the Lewis-directed three-day week, was issued by Joseph E. Moody, president of the Southern Coal Producers Association.

Moody also suggested antitrust action against Lewis.

At Key West, White House sources said that the President will ignore the appeal, first, because he feels that the three-day production permitted by the UMW eliminates the probability of a national emergency due to lack of coal.

However, the aides added, the President is also irked by the breach of protocol made by the Southern producers in releasing their appeal to the newspapers before the plea could reach the President.

On the soft coal front, Lewis announced more independents had agreed to his new terms; $15 a day pay and 35 cents royalties for each ton of coal mined. Thus, companies producing some 13 million tons annually have signed up new contracts, representing around 2½ percent of the Nation's yearly output. Signatory companies are permitted to operate on a 5- or 6-day week.

After two weeks, negotiations over a new contract in the anthracite industry were put over to Monday. Union officials here are optimistic that a new contract will be concluded in the hard coal field within the near future.

that in this case a constitutional act was constitutionally applied."

The case was first tried in District Court on March 9, 1948. At Miss Keyes' request the trial judge, Matthew F. McGuire, made a personal inspection of her homes and then ruled:

"The refusal by the defendants (Condemnation Board) to [illegible] the order of condemnation of the buildings . . . was and is entirely justified. The defendants would be derelict in their duty to have done otherwise."

Pretrial Judge Criticized

The Appeals Court criticized a pretrial judge's decision to eliminate from consideration the constitutionality issue brought by Miss Keyes, but added, however, that the question was "immaterial."

"Since the lower court's findings that the condition of the houses justified the board in exercising the authority to condemn conferred by the statute must, therefore, be upheld, it follows that the order of condemnation did not deprive the appellant of her property without due process of law," wrote Judge Miller.

The 11 houses owned by Miss Keyes are of frame construction and 61 years old.

The board has either succeeded in inducing repairs or securing condemnation of about 150 substandard dwellings annually here. Though admittedly only a "stopgap" attack on the city slum problem, District officials feel the board's work serves an important function from both a health and a housing standpoint.

Engineer Commissioner Gordon R. Young is now seeking to step up board activities through more personnel and administrative overhauling.

Another case closely related to the Keyes decision is the so-called Little case in which the Court of Appeals last August ruled that a District health officer must obtain a warrant before inspecting a private home if the owner or occupant objects.

The Supreme Court is expected to consider that ruling next month.

the leadership could stimulate action on the home rule bill. The powerful House Rules Committee could take the home rule legislation out of the District Committee's hands and present it directly to the House. A compromise bill might be developed that would get by the District Committee. On the floor, he said, the compromise could be amended, even to the point of substituting for it the Senate-approved home rule plan.

But the most important thing to do now, said Auchincloss, "is to secure the active interest of the President. I've spoken to him about home rule, and he's for it, there's no question about it."

"If he would come out in his message to Congress in January, not with just a sentence, but with a paragraph devoted to the tragedy of the residents in the Nation's Capital not having the power to vote, if he says it's a shame and a thing he wants to see corrected, then it's a mandate to his leaders in Congress to see that that happens."

In reports from member organizations to the conference group:

1. Edmund Pendleton, jr., of the District Young Republicans, said Albert B. Hermann, executive director of the Republican National Committee, conferred with local groups about home rule and indicated his desire to help. Hermann said later he told Mrs. Frances Adams of Americans for Democratic Action he will consult House Republican leaders and "see if we can be helpful." He said he advised the District group "to concentrate on the party in power, because that's the party that has bottled up home rule."

2. Herbert Leeman, president of the Federation of Citizens Associations, said he believes enthusiasm for home rule among the associations is growing. He predicted that when Congress returns, many House members will rush to get their names on the discharge petition.

3. James C. Gildea, vice president of the District Industrial Union Council, CIO, said his group conferred with the CIO national legislative committee about home rule. The committee, he said, has called upon CIO organizations to urge Congressmen to sign the petition, and has placed District home rule high in its legislative program.

4. Similar reports fo efforts to obtain House member signatures for the discharge petition were presented by Tilford Dudley, assistant director of the CIO Political Action Committee; Mrs. Katherine Freund, ADA; John Foley, Young Democrats; Gerhard Van Arkel, Democratic Central Committee; Mrs. Milton Dunn, League of Women Voters; Mrs. Charlotte Sillers, Women's Auxiliary, United Public Workers.

Woolsey Hall, of the Federation of Civic Associations, paid tribute to Auchincloss "for putting the local self-governing movement into a channel where we have so much hope of success."

Culver B. Chamberlain, chairman of the Central Suffrage Conference, said his group wrote to each House member asking home rule bill support. Mrs. Marshall Hornblower, chairman of the Home Rule headquarters set up by the conference at 308 Pennsylvania ave. se., said about one-third of the Congressmen replied. Many said they would sign the discharge petition, many were noncommittal, but there were few flat refusals.

Sturgis Warner, attorney, acting chairman of the meeting, called for energetic fund-raising efforts to finance the Home Rule headquarters. More than $100 was pledged or given before the meeting ended, and there were tentative pledges of another $150. Warner said $1000 is needed to run the office three months, and "the more we raise the more effective we can be."

A conference citation for valuable service to the home rule drive was presented by President Chamberlain to Mrs. Frances McClintock, past president of the District League of Women Voters, who is moving to Foston.

Bus Drivers Weigh New ABW Offer

Union employes of the A. B. & W. Transit Co. were meeting early today to consider a new offer by the company which has been under State operation since a strike vote five months ago.

The union membership was to vote on contract changes discussed with company officials at a 4-hour meeting yesterday.

Neither union nor company officials would disclose terms of the new agreement which went before members at 2 a. m. today.

Previous demands of the union, Local 1131, Amalgamated Association of Street Railway and Motor Coach Employees of America (AFL), were for a 30-cent hourly increase, a pension plan and other benefits.

The company had offered the terms of the previous contract, including $1.35 an-hour maximum for bus operators and $1.45 for mechanics.

professional gambling," Judge Holtzoff continued, "is not in the gambling itself. While his gambling operations were not of great consequence in themselves, gambling operations frequently become the scene of worse crimes."

Acalotti had been in jail since Tuesday when he was convicted by a jury of six men and six women who deliberated less than an hour.

Miss Franklin, a former waitress in the Thomas Circle area who testified during the trial that she had taken numbers and horse bets for Acalotti, first unfolded her knowledge of District gambling last February to The Washington Post. After taking her story, a Post reporter took Miss Franklin to U. S. Attorney George Morris Fay.

Fay presented Miss Franklin as a key witness to the gambling grand jury. Information supplied by her formed the basis for most of the eight mass raids made under Fay's direction March 25. As a result of these raids 36 men were arrested. Acalotti is the first of the 36 to be jailed, the second to be convicted. Nineteen still face trial.

6 CIO Left-Wing Unions Lose Standing for Not Paying Dues

By the United Press

CIO President Philip Murray yesterday notified six left-wing unions, with some 300,000 members, that they no longer are in good standing because of nonpayment of dues.

Advised that they will receive no benefits from the parent body until they pay up were the Office and Professional Workers Union; the United Public Workers; Food, Tobacco and Agricultural Workers; International Longshoremen's Union; Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers, and the United Furniture Workers.

They are among 10 CIO unions now under investigation by the National Organization for Alleged Left-Wing Activities. All are expected to be ousted from the CIO by next March.

A special three-man CIO committee opens hearings here Monday on the left-wing tendencies of the Office Workers Union. Similar proceedings against the others will begin soon.

The four unions which are paid up but which still face investigation are the Fur and Leather Workers, the Fisherman's Union, the American Communications Association, and the Marine Cooks and Stewards Union.

CIO officials refused to say whether the six unions had begun withholding payments to the national organization for fear they will be expelled and thus lose the funds.

UE Sues NLRB to Bar Collective Bargaining

By the United Press

The left-wing United Electrical Workers yesterday asked the Federal court here to stop the Government—at least for the time being—from holding hearings which might force it out of the Nation's biggest electrical manufacturing plants.

The union also asked the court to award it $100,000 in damages from the five-man National Labor Relations Board and its general counsel, Robert N. Denham.

It charged that the board and Denham had prejudiced its standing as bargaining agent for employes of such companies as General Electric, Westinghouse Electric, and General Motors Corp.

It said Denham had ordered his regional directors to go ahead with plans for new bargaining elections at these companies despite the fact UE hold labor contracts with the firms.

The UE was expelled from the CIO last month on charges of following the Communist party line. The CIO then set up a new—and right-wing—union which is trying to take over much of the membership of the old UE.

The new CIO union has asked the labor board to hold new elections among employes of major electrical manufacturing companies to determine which union should represent them at the bargaining table.

According to the old UE, Denham has advised his subordinates that present contracts "should be no bar" to new elections.

The UE asked the court to issue a restraining order directing Denham and the board to call off the election hearings until Denham rescinds the order to his regional directors.

College Senior Hunted by Police In Campus Slaying

Wake Forest, N. C., Dec. 16—(AP)—A bullet through his brain killed a former Wake Forest College student early today and police hunted a college senior on a murder warrant.

Roy W. Coble, 20, of Oakboro died after police found him unconscious in a wrecked car on the campus.

Coroner I. M. Cheek ordered a murder warrant against Raymond D. Hair, 23, of Fayetteville.

A widespread search for Hair fanned out after he fled when police discovered Coble in the car.

Coble's wallet contained checks totaling $230 made out to cash and bearing Hair's signature. Investigation revealed the two youths had been in a poker game.

Navy Employes Receive Awards For Useful Ideas

Two Navy Department employes have received awards totaling $180 for suggestions to the Bureau of Yards and Docks.

The awards were presented Thursday by Rear Admiral J. F. Jelley, chief of the bureau, to Wilmer B. Sagle, jr. of Laurel, Md., and Miss E. M. Hamner, 3100 Connecticut ave. nw.

Sagle received $130 for a time-saving method for maintaining statistical information regarding obligations and expenditures on contracts.

Miss Hamner received $50 for her suggested change in the form used by public works officers to write letters of acceptance.

was attributed to him, and he was said to have excused himself for denying his guilt.

His denial was due to "nervous agitation and the unhealthy ambition of an intellectual," he allegedly said.

In his purported plea for mercy, he promised he would devote the remainder of his life to the expiation of his sins and in increasingly devout service of communism in Bulgaria.

Everything he confessed to before the trial began was 100 per cent true, the radio quoted him as saying. He allegedly confirmed "in their entirety" confessions written by him when he was in the hands of the secret police before the trial.

The timing of the execution caught the world by surprise. Kostov was sentenced to death for treason, spying and sabotage Wednesday after a trial conducted at breakneck speed, in which his twice-repeated repudiations of guilt in the major charges were completely overlooked by the court and reviled in the communist press.

Yesterday, the Presidium of the Communist National Assembly rejected mitigation of the sentence. No date for the execution was announced publicly however.

Kostov is the third top-ranking Communist leader in the Soviet bloc to have been executed this year on accusations of being pro-Tito. Laszlo Rajk, former Hungarian Communist Foreign Minister, was hanged in Budapest, and Koci Xoxe, former No. 2 Communist of Albania, the fourth Russian satellite, was hanged in Tirana.

Violent anti-American harangues were delivered at public meetings in Sofia today by the two men who now rank highest in the Bulgarian Communist Party—Vasil Kolarov, premier, and Vulko Charvenkov, secretary of the Bulgarian party and brother-in-law of the late Premier Georgi Dmitrov. Charvenkov is regarded as the wheel horse of the Soviet Union in Sofia.

Their attacks on the United States, coupled with violent ranting at Britain and Tito, were delivered in preparation for the parliamentary elections to be staged in Bulgaria Sunday.

The oratory, as heard here over the Sofia radio, was of a raving nature and the audience frequently interrupted to break into militant songs.

Suicide Preferred To Convicting Kostov

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Dec. 16 (AP)—A Bulgarian source here said today that Bulgaria's chief public prosecutor committed suicide rather than carry out orders to convict former Vice Premier Traicho Kostov of treason.

The death of the prosecutor, identified here only at Parmatarov, in November—shortly before Kostov went on trial—went unnoticed except for a small paid advertisement which his family inserted in the Sofia press.

The Bulgarian source said the death was listed as an "accident," but that Paramatrov actually threw himself in front of a streetcar.

Yule Shopping In D. C. Creeps Ahead of 1948

By S. Oliver Goodman

Dollar volume of Washington department store sales in the week ended December 10 crept 1 percent ahead of the same 1948 week, the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond reported last night.

The real test of the strength of pre-Christmas buying will come in the tabulation for this week. One local merchant yesterday reported "we're comfortably ahead for the month to date." Others said unit transactions were at an all-time high, but lower prices and some rainy weather were tending to hold down dollar volume.

For the four weeks ended December 10, local store sales were reported unchanged from the same period last year.

Nationally, the Federal Reserve Board reported store sales in the week ended December 10 were 4 percent below last year, while the four-week period showed a 6 percent drop.

A calendar quirk will tend to shoot this year's Christmas sales to a far higher level than last year, it was anticipated. Last year Christmas came on a Saturday, eliminating one day from heaviest shopping week of the year. With Christmas falling on a Sunday, merchants this year will benefit by a full week of shopping days before the holiday.

Regarding other new factors on this year's Christmas business, several local merchants agreed that there is more demand for lower-priced gift items than last year. Also, it was noted, there is more price-shopping and a tendency to delay purchases.

One retailer said he expected a fast-moving final 10 days. "Many people appear to be going back to their traditional habit of doing their Christmas buying at the last minute." He added they're no longer afraid that stocks will be depleted seriously before they buy.

GAS SALES SPURT: November sales of gas in Washington spurted 10.35 percent over the same 1948 month, the Washington Gas Light Co. reported yesterday. This brought sales for the 11 months to 137,605,662 therms, an increase of 1.31 percent over the same 1948 period.

ON REGENTS BOARD: Richard A. Norris of Washington has accepted an invitation extended by F. Raymond Peterson, president of the American Bankers Association, to serve as a member of the board of regents of the Graduate School of Banking at Rutgers University. The appointment is for a three-year term. Norris, executive vice president of the Lincoln National Bank, is a past president of the District of Columbia Bankers Association, as well as Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking.

Cudahy Reports $4,650,382 Loss

Chicago, Dec. 16 (AP).—The Cudahy Packing Co., one of the four largest packing firms in the Nation, today reported a net loss of $4,650,382 for the fiscal year ended October 29, 1949.

This compared with a net income of $1,012,737, equal to 36 cents a common share, in the preceding fiscal year.

E. A. Cudahy, chairman, told stockholders in his annual report that the loss "resulted primarily from inventory write-downs during the continuously declining market through the early part of our fiscal year."

In the last half of the fiscal year, Caduhy said, the company operated at a profit, which he termed "encouraging, as it indicated that a period of relatively stable levels for grain, livestock and meat products had arrived."

Net sales during the 1949 fiscal year totaled $559,204,524 compared with $567,877,126 in the preceding year.

Catholics Prepare For Holy Year Rites

Shortly after 10 a. m. on the morning of December 24, Pope Pius XII will lead a solemn ceremony opening the door of St. Peter's Basilica in Rome to mark the beginning of the Holy Year of 1950.

Repeating in Latin the phrase "Open to me the door of justice, for God is with us," the Pontiff will tap three times on the door with a silver hammer. On the third blow it will open.

Simultaneously, three cardinals delegated by the Pope will open the doors of St. Paul's Outside the Walls, St. Mary's Major and St. John's Lateran.

During 1950, more than one million Roman Catholics from all over the world are expected to visit Rome to receive Holy Year indulgences and to participate in special jubilee year events. Officials have estimated that more than 150,000 American Catholics will journey to Rome during the year.

Each diocese is planning an official pilgrimage to the Holy City. The Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle, archbishop of Washington, is sponsoring a pilgrimage which will be led by the Very Rev. Msgr. John S. Spence, archdiocesan director of education.

In addition to visiting Rome, many of the pilgrims will stop at the sacred shrines at Lourdes in France and Fatima in Portugal, and will attend the Passion Play at Oberammergau, Germany.

Holy Years were instituted by Pope Boniface VIII in 1300. Since 1450 there has been a Holy Year every 25 years, with the exception of 1800, 1850 and 1875, when political conditions in Europe prevented them.

In 1933 an extraordinary Holy Year was proclaimed to mark the 1900th anniversary of the death of Christ.

A number of international congresses of Catholic groups will be held during 1950 in Rome. These will include gatherings of Catholic journalists, nurses and hospital administrators, priests and laity who work with sailors, missionaries, chemists, social service workers, philosophers and religious teachers.

One of the most important of these congresses will be next December, when lay workers will meet to discuss methods of spreading the knowledge of Catholicism.

Holiday Cards Delivered by Lutheran Unit

Thousands of holiday greeting cards this week were distributed to patients at Gallinger Hospital by volunteer women of the Lutheran Inner Mission Society.

The cards, complete with postage, were given to patients by a group of women led by Mrs. F. G. Umhau of St. Mark's-Incarnation Lutheran Church.

In addition to distributing the cards, the Inner Mission Society has "adopted" the psychopathic ward of the hospital for the Christmas season.

Trimmed Christmas trees will be set up in six wards and the receiving unit, and each patient will receive a gift of toilet articles, fruit and candy.

The Christmas gifts will be donated by thousands of Sunday school children from Greater Washington Lutheran Churches. The white-draped packages have been presented at traditional white gift services in the churches during December.

The Rev. Donald F. Bautz is executive director of the society, which is a joint welfare organization of all Lutheran churches in the area. Its offices are at 1736 Jefferson pl. nw.

White gifts will be presented at Luther Place Memorial Church, Thomas cir. nw., at 6:30 p. m. Sunday. Children will present "Why the Chimes Rang" at the service.

A Christmas pageant will be given in the parish hall of Atonement Lutheran Church, 2 Rhode Island ave. ne., at a white gift service at 7 p. m. Sunday. St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Connecticut ave. and Everett st. nw., will have its white gift service at 7:30 p. m. Sunday.

Methodists To Hear of Child Care

Methodists will turn their attention on Sunday to the work of the Board of Child Care of the Baltimore Annual Conference.

Collections in the churches will be used to provide the $53,500 necessary for the board's operations during the year. The collection is made annually during Christmas season.

The conference, which includes Methodist churches in Greater Washington, operates three institutions for children, and provides machinery for providing foster homes and adoptions. More than 200 children received aid through the board last year.

Three Homes Served

Most of the budget will be used for support of the three institutions. These are the Swartzell Home for Children, 6200 2d st., which last year served 56 boys and girls; Strawbridge Home for Boys, Sykesville, Md., 20 miles west of Baltimore; and Kelso Home for Girls, in Towson, Md.

Although institutional care is a major part of the board's operation, it is looked upon by board officials as a temporary expedient. They hope all children under their care will be returned to family life, either with their own parents, with foster parents, or with some childless Methodist couple.

System of Care

A major part of the children cared for by the board are referred to it by social agencies in Baltimore and Washington. Others are sent to the board by ministers, church members, or by their own families.

Headquarters for the Board of Child Care is in Baltimore, with the Rev. Dr. F. Reid Isaac as general superintendent. In addition, the board has three trained caseworkers, a casework supervisor, and two secretaries.

A Washington office is maintained at Waugh Methodist Church, 306 A st. ne.

During the Christmas season the children who live at the three homes will return to their own parents, or will stay with board-approved families so they may get a taste of the family life they miss at the institutions.

St. Paul's Church To Bless Window

A stained glass window over the high altar of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, 2430 K st. nw., will be blessed at the 11:15 a. m. mass Sunday.

Officiant and preacher at the dedication will be the Rev. Arlington A. McCallum, rector emeritus of St. Paul's. The Rev. James Richards, rector of the church, will celebrate the mass. The window, with red and blue as its dominant colors, portrays the life and work of St. Paul.

Pageant for Children

The Young People's Fellowship of All Souls Memorial Episcopal Church, Cathedral ave. and Woodley pl. nw., will give a pageant for children of the church school at 4 p. m. Sunday.

Sunday CHURCH EVENTS

A Ukranian Orthodox congregation will hold the first of a series of monthly services in the Bethlehem Chapel of the Washington Cathedral at 11 a. m. The Rev. Wladimir Lewitsky will be in charge.

Christmas music from around the world will be sung at a Christmas candlelight service at 5 p. m. at the Walter Reed Memorial Chapel. Chaplains James H. Terry, William S. Behrick and Charles B. Whitman will officiate.

"Coming Events" will be the Rev. Dr. Seth R. Brooks' sermon subject at 11 a. m. at Universalist National Memorial Church, 1810 16th st. nw.

An outside Christmas tree will be lighted at 6 p. m. at Georgetown Lutheran Church, Wisconsin ave. and Volta pl. nw. After the ceremony there will be carol singing from 6:30 to 7:30 p. m.

The Rev. Vernon Johns, minister of Dexter Avenue Baptist Church, Montgomery, Ala., will preach on "Handicaps to a View of Jesus" at 11 a. m. at Andrew Rankin Memorial Chapel, Howard University.

National Presbyterian Church, Connecticut ave. and N st. nw., will be lighted entirely by candles at a Christmas vesper service at 5 p. m. A festival of Christmas carols will be sung by the chancel choir of the church.

J. B. Fisher to Talk On Unification at Arlington Church

John B. Fisher of Boston, executive director of the United Unitarian Appeal, will be guest speaker at 11 a. m. Sunday at the Unitarian Church of Arlington, 4451 1st pl. S., Arlington, Va.

Fisher, who heads fund-raising of the Unitarian Church, will describe work of Unitarians through the American Unitarian Association, the Unitarian service committee, and the denomination's organizations for men, women, youth and ministers.

The church has been having guest speakers since the Rev. Gilbert A. Phillips, pastor of the church since it was organized in 1948, resigned early this month because of ill health. A committee to seek a successor has been named.

Hamline Methodist Plans Yule Party

A family Christmas festival will be held at 7 p. m. Sunday at Hamline Methodist Church, 16th and Allison sts. nw.

The Men's Brotherhood will give a party for the children, and a play, "Christmas in the Cobbler Shop" will be presented. A candle lighting service in the church sanctuary will also be a part of the festival.

Many Groups Plan Sunday Yule Pageants

For children and adults, one of the traditional activities of the Christmas season is the retelling of the story of the Nativity through pageants and plays.

At Westmoreland Congregational Church, Westmoreland Circle nw., the newly organized Westmoreland Players will give Henry Van Dyke's "The Other Wise Man" at 5 p. m. Sunday. Afterward, members of the 20-40 club will serve tea.

Miss May Haslacker, a member of Chevy Chase Baptist Church, 5671 Western ave. nw., is the author of "The Christmas Story," a pageant to be given at the Chevy Chase church at 5 p. m.

To Sing Old Hymns

Three hymns which may have been sung in the early days of Alexandria's Old Presbyterian Meeting House, built in 1774, will be sung at a candlelight srevice and pageant at the church at 5 p. m. Sunday. One of the hymns, "Behold the Grace Appears" was found in a hymnal published in 1817, the same year the church's organ was installed.

White-wrapped gifts will be brought to the 8 p. m. service at Memorial Evangelical United Brethren Church, 1700 North Capital st., at which "The Other Wise Man" will be given.

"Christmas Under the Stars," the story of the birth of Christ, will be given at 8 p. m. at National City Christian Church, Thomas cir. nw.

To Read Dickens Story

At 7:30 p. m. Sunday a Christmas pageant will be given for the Sunday school at St. John's Episcopal Church, Lafayette sq. The Rev. Dr. C. Leslie Glenn, rector of the church, will read the first part of Charles Dickens' "A Christmas Carol" to the children and their families.

A cast of over 100 persons from the choir and church school of Wesley Methodist Church, Connecticut ave. and Jocelyn st. nw., will present a Christmas carol and pageant service at 8 p. m. Sunday at the church.

The Nativity Cycle of the York Mystery Plays will be presented at Fifteenth Street Christian Church, 15th st. and Kentucky ave. se., on Sunday from 5 to 8 p. m.

The three choirs of the church will sing traditional carols during the presentation of the medieval mystery play.

Rev. John Thomas Ordained as Priest By Bishop Dun

The Rev. John Thomas was ordained to the Episcopal priesthood yesterday by the Right Rev. Angus Dun, Episcopal Bishop of Washington, at St. Andrew's Church, near Leonardtown, Md.

Mr. Thomas has been deacon-in-charge of St. Andrew's Church and St. Peter's Chapel, Leonardtown, since June. He is a graduate of Yale University and the Episcopal Theological Seminary, Cambridge, Mass., and a former member of St. John's Church, Lafayette Square, Washington.

St. Andrew's, one of southern Maryland's historic churches, was reopened in September through Mr. Thomas' efforts. In recent years it has been used only often enough to maintain its status as a church.

The present parish was created in 1744 and the church erected in 1767.

Protestants Set Up Body on Unification

Greenwich, Conn., Dec. 16. (NYHT)—The conference on Protestant Church Union, ending a three-day session here today, set up a permanent body pledged to draft a concrete plan for a united church.

The permanent conference represents nearly 20 million Protestant churchgoers in eight denominations and the Nation Council for Community Churches. The conference directed it to draw up a plan of "such a nature as to leave the door open to all other evangelical Christian bodies."

The conference directed that "careful attention should be paid" to the proposal of Dr. E. Stanley Jones, for federal union, and those of the Rev. Dr. Charles Clayton Morrison, former editor of the Christian Century, for a united church.

The "Jones Plan" would make denominations divisions of a united church along federal lines. The church would retain their identities much as do States. The "Morrison Plan" would merge churches of various denominations on a regional basis under a federal council.

"The plan is to be drawn up as soon as possible and presented at a meeting to be held not later than early in 1951.

A message to the churches, approved by the conference, declared:

"We seek an organic union of fellowship and organization of the church which will enable it to act as one body under Jesus Christ, who is the Head of the Church. Within our present denominations different types of organization are found. We believe that in any organic union of these denominations the basic values of the existing types must be preserved."

The conference elected as officers of the permanent conference the following delegates:

Bishop Ivan Lee Holt of St. Louis, president of the Council of Bishops of the Methodist Church, chairman; the Rev. Dr. William Barrow Pugh of Philadelphia, stated clerk of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A., vice-chairman; and the Rev. Dr. John Lentz of Philadelphia, first vice president of the Evangelical Reformed Church, treasurer.

Dr. Holt declared: "We are not ready yet to draw any blueprint of a new church, but we are very sensible of the fact that we are being led in that direction."

Welfare Case Samples Asked In Arlington

The Virginia State Welfare Department, which ignores localities in preparing its 1951 budget request, now wants detailed information on 100 sample case budgets, Arlington Welfare Director John Howell said yesterday.

What Virginia Director of Welfare and Institutions Richard W. Copeland wants the information for is a mystery, Howell said, adding no explanation has accompanied the State request.

Copeland's budget for the next biennium—lowers their funds for the current year—was presented in October to the Governor's Budget Advisory Committee. He asked $3,181,000 for 1951 and $3,315,500 for 1952, compared to this year's budget of $3,425,000, Howell pointed out.

"Always before there has been consultation with the localities in the fall preceding meeting of the Legislature," Howell said. Copeland took office in July, 1948, after the current biennial budget had been approved, following a reorganization of the State government.

Howell said preparation of the sample case budgets will necessitate "closing up" the county welfare office for three days sometime between Christmas and New Year's, to give staff workers a chance to prepare the requested information.

Church Safe Thieves Get $200; Liquor Store Robbed of $589

Some of the luster was rubbed off Christmas yesterday for the flock of the Metropolitan Baptist Church, 1225 R st. nw.

Thieves entered the church during the night, cracked a safe and made off with about $200 which was earmarked for mission work and a Christmas party.

The Rev. Ernest C. Smith, pastor of the church, told police the yeggs forced opened a rear door, then opened the safe by punching in the dial.

Safecrackers also paid a visit to the Carman Wine & Liquor Store, 1303 7th st. nw. They ripped open an old safe and found it empty. But they located $589 in cash in a desk drawer and two cash registers.

Serglus B. Carman, owner of the store, told police the men got in through a skylight. Carman is a gun collector and the thieves took five pistols of his collection at the store. They also helped themselves to about a dozen pints of whisky.

Transit Dispute Weighed

A five-man board, which held hearings last month, yesterday went into executive session at the Statler Hotel in an effort to hammer out an arbitration award in the dispute between Capital Transit Co. and its employes.

The union asked for a 25-cent hourly increase in wages and improvement in working conditions.

The union, Division 689, Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes, AFL, argued the wage boost would only help CTC workers keep abreast of the "real increase" in living costs. It said the firm had fallen behind the transit field and industry generally in wage raises.

Capital Transit maintained present wages are "fair and adequate." The average earnings of streetcar and bus operators is now $3339 a year before taxes are deducted, the firm argued, and contended a substantial cut in service may be required even without a wage hike.

A strike called for July 1 was averted when the company agreed to the five-man arbitration of the dispute as suggested by Cyrus S. Ching.

Unbeaten Hoyas Face Harvard; GW Plays Virginia

Defense Big Factor

Any Coach Could Win With Neale's Eagles

By Steve Snider

NEW YORK, DEC. 16 (U.P.).—One victory away from his second straight National League title, Earle (Greasy) Neale of the Philadelphia Eagles rates a solid vote as pro football's coach of the year.

Greasy put defense back into the pass-happy professional game. But as for being coach of the year, he wouldn't agree even if his precious Eagles fight down a rugged jinx and whip the Los Angeles Rams Sunday in the first championship ever staged on the West Coast.

"Any qualified coach could win with this bunch I've got," said Greasy in a recent appraisal of his defending champions. "They have kept up their spirit for four solid months of competition and they're better now than when they started."

They started with a tremendous 38 to 0 victory over the College All-Stars coached by Bud Wilkinson at Chicago in mid-August and wound up the regular season with two straight victories over the New York Giants.

THE GIANTS FAILED to score a touchdown in either game and there was a reason for that. Gene Roberts of the Giants was threatening to tie Eagle Steve Van Buren's scoring record of 18 touchdowns for one season (set in 1945) but the Eagles vowed Roberts never would cross their goal line to share that record. He didn't come close.

But four months of football is a long, long time in the pro league and the All-Star jinx worries Neale even more than do the fancy Rams under Clark Shaughnessy. Only one other club, the fabulous Chicago Bears of 1941-42, ever played in Chicago's All-Star game in August and held together long enough to defend its title successfully in December.

"They said we couldn't do it," Neale said. "It's a lot to ask but I think we can."

Despite the jinx and Shaughnessy's effective pass patterns, we'll string along with the odds that make the Eagles a seven and one-half point favorite to repeat.

GREASY'S OUTFIT bowed only to the Chicago Bears during the regular season and walloped the Rams, 38 to 14, when it counted in the standings. The Rams, however, held the Eagles to a 24 to 24 exhibition tie and probably that's a fairer estimate of their merits than the top-heavy Philadelphia victory.

Los Angeles moves the ball in spectacular fashion on the passing of Bob Waterfield and Norm Van Brocklin. Their principal receiver is Tom Fears, best pass catcher in the league for the second straight year. Fears knocked Don Hutson's name out of the record books this season by snagging 77 compared to Hutson's best season of 74.

The Eagles, however, can run the ball or throw it. Van Buren broke his own single season rushing record with 1146 yards this year and Quarterback Tommy Thompson rated behind only Sammy Baugh of Washington and Johnny Lujack of the Bears in the final passing records.

But where the Eagles really shine is on defense with nobody else close. Defense won the first Los Angeles game for Greasy. It figures to come through for him again.

D.C. Teams Favored in Tonight's Armory Bill

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

George Washington and Georgetown, traditional rivals, once again become promotional partners tonight at the Armory.

Georgetown meets Harvard in the first of the only preholiday college basketball doubleheader at 8 p.m. GW plays Virginia in the second game.

All four boast fine early-season records. Worst of the lot is Virginia which still has a creditable 4-2 mark.

Under Buddy O'Grady, youthful coach in his first season, Georgetown has swept its first four games. Veterans Tommy O'Keefe and Johnny Brown provide a potent one-two scoring punch.

O'Keefe Red Hot

O'Keefe, upping his total in each game, has tallied 70 points; Brown, 66. John Mazziotta, 6-foot-5 junior, is third with 43.

Capt. Dick Falvey, Italo Ablondi and Frank Alagia supply experience and the starters are backed up by a good sophomore crop.

Matching the O'Keefe-Brown duo will be John Rockwell and Edward Smith. Between them, they've accounted for 159 of Harvard's 275 points.

Virginia, after breezing past its first four opponents, is out to snap a two game losing streak against George Washington. Duke and Navy beat the Cavaliers.

Roanoke at American

Coach Gus Tebell feels he always has a chance with high-scoring Joe Noertker. The 6-foot-3 center was right with the leaders last year in national scoring and he hasn't lost his touch.

Roanoke, impressive 97-57 victor over Catholic U., plays at American U. tonight in a Mason-Dixon Conference game. The Eagles have dropped three in a row, including a tough 68-63 loss to Georgetown.

Maryland, 10-point loser to Virginia, plays Navy at Annapolis this afternoon. That's always a tough hurdle for a visiting team. Navy romped over Virginia last time out.

'Let's Forget It'

Griff Says Trade With Yanks Is Off

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

The pennnant-winning Yankees and the last-place Nats, as far apart as is humanly possible to get in the American League standings, no longer are within shouting distance of each other on their proposed player deal.

"It's off," said Clark Griffith, president of the Nats.

"It's off," said George Weiss, general manager of the Yankees.

Negotiations collapsed completely yesterday following Griffith's telephone calls to New York in which he offered First Baseman Eddie Robinson for three Yankee players—First Baseman Dick Kryhoski, Second Baseman George Stirnweiss and Pitcher Don Johnson.

The deal was stalled when the Yankees wanted to expand it to a four-for-two trade, offering to add Pitcher Duane Pillette to their proposal if Griffith would include Pitcher Mickey Harris.

They Wanted Harris

Earlier reports had it that the Yankees wanted Pitcher Dick Weik from the Nats, but that was denied. Griffith would not admit that Harris was the pitcher the Yankees sought, but other sources were positive.

The Nats' owner expressed no great concern at his unfruitful attempts to make a deal with the Yanks. "I wasn't anxious to let go of Robinson, anyway," he declared.

Griffith was slightly out of patience with the Yankees' demands, anyway. "They wanted Robinson for three players, none of whom were Yankee regulars. And then they wanted a pitcher in addition. I was giving up the only solid ball player in the whole deal, and I couldn't gamble that much."

Griffith's last word with Weiss, he declares, was the suggestion that the Yankees' boss "forget it," if the New York club wasn't satisfied with a three-for-one swap.

A press service report that quoted Weiss as saying "Washiniton withdrew one player from

Eslin Scores Record 26 as Coolidge Wins

Don Eslin ran wild, racking up 26 points, as Coolidge romped to its second win, 58-39, over Gonzaga yesterday on the winner's floor.

The slender 5-foot, 11-inch guard broke through for six points in the first minute of play and added to his total in every period to set a new scoring record for the Colts gym.

Both teams used full squads, Gerry LeCompte leading the Eagle scoring with 11 points.

Langley Product Makes Good

Soph Kernan's Winning Style May Push McKinley to Title

By West McLean
Post Reporter

STAN KERNAN is the lad who may well bring the Interhigh basketball championship to McKinley Tech this year. The sophomore sensation isn't used to defeat and always seems to have that little extra something that can pull victory out of defeat.

The 5-foot 10-inch guard was a member of the Langley Junior High championship team last year, this year he has moved right into a first-string berth with the Trainers.

A clutch player, Stan only scored three points in the Bullis game, but they came at a time when Bullis had finally overtaken Tech and forged into the lead. Kernan drove in for basket and also made good the foul shot he drew to put the Trainers into the lead to stay.

He just missed another layup shot in the American University Frosh game that could again have pulled Tech ahead in the late stages. His shot hit the rim, rolled around, and finally dropped outside, no good. Tech lost that one, 43-40.

Kernan teams with Tony Sogo, the leading scorer for the Trainers, Bill Breen, Tom McGill and Jeff Jackson in Coach Dutch Usilaner's favorite combination.

Jones' Goal Halts Blair Rally, 43-41

An amazing second-half rally by Montgomery-Blair just fell short and George Washington opened its season with a 43-41 victory in Alexandria yesterday.

The triumph was the twenty-first straight for the Presidents on their home floor.

Rolling up a 25-9 halftime lead, GW seemed on its way to an easy victory. Then Montgomery-Blair started piercing its zone defense.

The visitors could not quite catch up. They were within two points with 30 seconds left when G. W.'s Erwin Jones made it 43-39.

Clemson's Late Rally Hands Terps 5th Loss in 6 Starts

Clemson forged ahead in the last five minutes and outlasted Maryland, 60-55, in a Southern Conference contest at College Park last night.

The loss was the fifth in six starts for the Terrapins and made their conference record, 1-2.

Clemson overcome a 5-point margin at the start and again at the end. Maryland dissipated its slendar lead before Dick Koffenberger's long shot brought it within 2 points in the last two minutes, 57-55.

The visitors wound up with 3 more points while holding Maryland scoreless.

It was the first conference victory for Banks McFadden's South Carolinians who were led by Jim Reynolds' 15 points. Clemson has split four games. Lee Brawley, usual Terp high scorer, shared honors with Dick Koffenberger and Bob Murray, each tallying 12 points.

1950 Shift Proposed

Tatum Hopes Duke, GW, Hoyas Will Play in New Terp Stadium

Frederick, Md., Dec. 16 (AP).—Coach Jim Tatum says he is trying to book seven of Maryland's 10 football games next year into the new university stadium at College Park.

The Maryland coach told a meeting of the Frederick County Terrapin Club there's "a good chance" of arranging the seven home games.

Tatum, who also is athletic director and responsible for schedule making, said Virginia Tech, Navy, Michigan State and South Carolina are definitely booked to play at College Park.

He said it is possible games now scheduled away with GeGorgetown, Duke and George Washington will be shifted.

Maryland's other away games will be with North Carolina State, North Carolina and West Virginia. The 1950 schedule has not been announced yet because of the possible shifts.

Concrete foundations are being poured now for the new university stadium. It is possible to be finished next June. The bowl will have 34,500 concrete seats and temporary stands will boost the capacity to 45,000.

Maryland played this season's home games in an old wooden stadium seating only 18,000. Last year it played its home games in Griffith Stadium in Washington.

Farrington, Hagerty Receptive to Idea

Max Farrington, GW athletic director, said last night he could see "no objection" to playing Maryland in its new stadium next fall.

Farrington added, "I think we may play there."

Georgetown Athletic Director Jack Hagerty said Maryland hadn't made any formal approach. Hagerty said, "We haven't talked over the details but if GW is satisfied, I suppose we would be."

Holy Cross Meets NYU in Garden

New York, Dec. 16 (AP).—Holy Cross' unbeaten Crusaders and Denver's tall, young quintet, provide the opposition for New York University and Long Island U. in Madison Square Garden basketball double-header tomorrow night.

Holy Cross (4-0), led once again by high-scoring Bob Cousy, meets NYU's disappointing Violets (2-3) in the opener.

L. I. U. (4-1), riding high again after its victory over Oklahoma A. & M. will be favored to down Denver (2-2) in the windup.

Beau Beaten By Portuguez

New York, Dec. 16—(AP)—Youth had its fling tonight as Tuzo (Kid) Portuguez, a crude workman from San Jose, Costa Rica, carved out a split decision over Beau Jack, a pale carbon of the old Augusta shoe shine boy. Portuguez weighed 146½. Jack 142.

A small crowd of 7281 which paid $20,382 saw the 21-year-old Central American welter outlast the former lightweight champion in a close battle.

Judge Jack Gordon scored it 6-3 with one even in favor of Portuguez but Judge Art Aidala gave it to Jack 5-4 with one even. Referee Al Berle's vote was decisive for Portuguez, 7-3. The AP scorecard had it 5 for Portuguez, 4 for Jack and one even.

Referee Berle was as busy as the fighters, warning against low blows. Jack lost the third for a low blow and Berle took the fourth from Portuguez for the same offense.

Jack tired in the late stages under the body barrage from the Costa Rican who failed to follow up his advantage. Portuguez dripped blood from a cut over the left eye and from the nose through the late stages.

Georgetown Frosh Win 3d Straight

Georgetown Frosh won its third straight game of the season by downing Maryland Frosh, 62-46, in the preliminary to the Clemson-Maryland game last night.

Loyolas Gang Up on Ohio

Columbus, Ohio, Dec. 16 (AP). Take a look at next Thursday night's Ohio College basketball schedule, and you'll think you are seeing triple.

Only three games for the Buckeye boys are on the slate that night, and the schedule reads:

Dayton at Loyola.

Ohio Wesleyan at Loyola.

Loyola at Bowling Green.

But everything's all right, and all three games December 22 will be played. Dayton's Flyers play Loyola of Chicago in Chicago; Wesleyan's battling Bishops meet Loyola of Baltimore, and Bowling Green entertains Loyola of Los Angeles at Bowling Green.

"I didn't withdraw anybody," said the Nats' owner, "they wanted something extra, and I wouldn't buy their proposition."

The Washington owner added, emphatically, "If I can't make a deal that will help our club, at least I'm not going to make a trade that will hurt it. Robinson is a valuable man, and we'll try toa build around him and a few others."

He did admit that if the Yankee deal had been made, George Stirnweiss would have been shipped to the Tigers in a swap for Outfielder Dick Wakefield. "But that's out now, with the Tigers having bought Gerry Priddy as their second baseman."

Victory Is Second in Three Days

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Charles Town, W. Va., Dec. 16. W. L. Curles' Young Scamp, winner at 9-1 here last Wednesday, turned in a repeat performance today, taking the featured Potomac Purse at a $17.40 mutuel.

With Jockey Nick Shuk again in the saddle, the son of Perchance and Scamper Home reached the finish line two and three-quarters lengths in front of Mrs. J. B. Hatfield's Paintandpowder. Three additional lengths back came W. Sedlacek's Sun Ember to be third in a field of seven.

Fifth Win for Young Scamp

The victory was the fifth of the year for Young Scamp who has had a busy year, having marched postward 35 times. Today he was giving weight to all rivals while carrying 120 pounds. The 5-year-old was clocked in 1:25 for the about seven furlongs for the fastest performance of the meeting to date. Soldierette holds the mark at 1:23 1-5.

Paintandpowder spent a brief interval in front but was soon displaced by Young Scamp. From that point to the wire, there was little doubt as to the winner. Paintandpowder was second best. Sun Ember made up some ground to be third.

Jockey Ray Arduini, who has a high percentage of winners per mounts, turned in two victories today. The Washington boy got up with C. E. Fitzgerald's Blow Hot in the final jump to win the third race.

Unaided Wins

He also took the fifth with A. T. Allen's Unaided, but this time he was forced to defend a claim of foul registered against him by George Challis, who rode Foster's Pride into a deadheat for the place with Mrs. E. G. Hullcott's Princess Gala. Unaided paid $16.40.

An objection also was registered in the fourth race, one of two winners ridden by Apprentice Dick Lawless. He piloted W. Sedlacek's Falsely, a $4.40 favorite. Sammy Palumbo, second with J. Valila's Skyflight, claimed Falsely bumped and carried his mount wide.

Lawless won the seventh event with a $3.80 favorite, Shangrila Stable's War Dressing. The son of Man O' War took the lead at the far turn and was coasting at the end.

Melito Gets 14 But B-CC Wins

Bethesda-Chevy Chase's Barons made an early four-point lead hold up through most of the game to score their second basketball win, 32-28, over Bell Vocational yesterday at Bethesda.

Bell's Gene Melito was the game's high scorer with 14 points. Bill Bock scored 12 points to pace the winners.

Caps, Bullets Renew Feud Here Tonight

Washington's Caps and Baltimore renew their ever-heated intercity rivalry 8:30 o'clock tonight at Uline Arena.

Always anxious to be as unneighborly as possible, anyway, each team is interested in srtetching a two-game winning streak.

For the first time in pro basketball history here, a high school preliminary will be staged at 7:15. It's between Gonzaga and Calvert Hall. The latter is the second half of the Baltimore entry.

The scholastic game is an experiment by the Caps, plagued by poor attendance since what looked like an encouraging start this season. If it helps, there will be more of them.

Uline officials are at wit's end. Attendance always has been slim here, even when the Caps were unbeatable. Now, after 19 games, they're hovering only a game above .500.

Baltimore stands an exceleint chance of putting them just at that mark. The Bullets trounced Minneapolis last game, 87-68. The Lakers lived up to their Mikanapolis nickname in that one, Big George scored exactly half their points.

Ed Sadowski, acquired from Philadelphia in a recent swap, showed signs of reviving with a 21-point performance. Paul Hoffman had 18 and Tommy Byrnes and Joe Dolhon supplied most of the rest.

Buddy Jeannette, player-coach of the Bullets, may be expected to join in the fun tonight. Baltimore dropped its first two with the Caps and Jeannette is the type of competitor who will want to do something about it.

Penetration May Decide Boys' Title

Club No. 4 meets Club No. 10 this afternoon at 2:30 at Fairlawn Field in Anacostia for the championship of the 140-pound division of the Metropolitan Police Boys Club.

League officials announced yesterday that the penetration system will be used in determining the winner, should the game end in a tie.

In the penetration system, points are scored each time a team advances inside the opposition's 30-yard line. The closer it advances to the goal line from the 30, the more points the team gets.

If that should fail to determine a winner, the team with the most downs will be declared champion. No. 4 won second-half honors with the penetration system last week.

No. 10 will bank heavily on Sammy Hartman and Johnny Lampin in the backfield and End Jerry Perkins. No. 4 will pin its hopes on Lineman Al Horner and Backs Jim Rhinehart and Hugo Schiattareggia.

Marines Drill For Title Game

Los Angeles, Dec. 16 (AP).—Final tune-up drills were on the schedule today as the All-Marine finalists in the All-Navy football championship, the powerful Quantico Marines and Camp Pendleton, got ready for their clash in Memorial Coliseum tomorrow.

The Quantico Leathernecks from Virginia, winners of the Eastern division scramble and seeking their third straight All-Navy crown, are favored to trim the California Gyrenes, but a wide open contest is expected.

Quantico's defense is built around T-quarterback Rudy Flores' passing, particularly to Bob McElroy. The Pendleton team boasts a pair of break-away runners in Skeet Quinlan and Joe Bartos, the latter well known as an former halfback for Navy at Annapolis in 1947.

AT CHARLES TOWN

DEAR FOLKS:

Today is the final Saturday program of the meeting that closes here on Wednesday and Racing Secretary Fred Burton has arranged an excellent show with sprinters and distance horses dividing attention in the two best offerings. The Hillsboro Purse brings together Flicka Foot, Duke Aumur, Wingy and others with plenty of foot. The unnamed seventh event promises a keen struggle of routers with Leamour and Boston Man expected to draw the bulk of the play. The card includes four sprints and an equal number of marathon affairs. Although the track is frozen underneath the surface, disk harrows have been used to cut a cushion and the strip has fast and safe thus far. Betting is off here as compared to last year, but Charles Town is topping New Orleans by a considerable margin. See you on the rail.—BILL.

Another Change Seen In Senate Postoffice And Civil Service Group

The make-up of the Senate Postoffice and Civil Service Committee will undergo another big change.

At least three new Republicans will be added to the committee. They will replace Senator Flanders (R., Vt.) who has sent in his resignation from the committee. Senator Baldwin (R., Conn.) has resigned from the Senate, and Senator Dulles (R., N. Y.) who was defeated in his election bid.

Two Democratic members have threatened to resign from the committee if they can get what they consider to be better assignments. Another resignation on the GOP side is a clear possibility.

Harry Darby, the new GOP Senator from Kansas, is slated to be assigned to the committee which passes on employe legislation.

In his letter of resignation, Flanders explained that the legislation he was most interested in —the executive pay bill—had been written into law. He was an active and able committee member.

LOYALTY: You can look for Congress to be asked to enact a permanent law to provide loyalty checks for Federal workers in sensitive agencies.

The military agencies—Army, Navy and Air Force—operate under Public Law 808 which is in effect for the duration of war and six months. State Department conducts its loyalty inquiries under a rider to its annual appropriation bill. Central Intelligence is the only sensitive agency that handles its loyalty program under a special permanent law.

All other Federal agencies make loyalty checks under the President's program which gives accused employes far greater appeal rights and protection than those operated under special laws.

Two years ago the sensitive agencies asked Congress for a special permanent loyalty law. Congress failed to act on it.

PERSONALS: Mark Gordon is the new chief of State's Division of Organization. He's a former Agriculture official who joined the Foreign Service two years ago . . . Dean O. Bowman has been appointed assistant director of Commerce's Office of Domestic Commerce. He will be responsible for the development of the office's commodity and industrial program . . . Dr. Erwin E. Nelson has been promoted to medical director of the Food and Drug Administration. He succeeds Dr. Robert T. Stormont who is resigning on January 1 . . . Harold C. Stuart, Assistant Air Force Secretary, is a former boxing champion at the University of Virginia.

OVERSEAS: A new Civil Service interpretation will allow eligible U. S. employes serving in public international agencies to be given permanent Civil Service status under the President's recent blanketing-in order. The employes, of course, must meet all conditions in the order.

TRIAL EXAMINERS: The Civil Service Commission is giving this controversial test a thorough going-over. It has decided: (1) to review each of the 2000 original applicants for the exam, and (2) to count experience on the exam up to July 5 of this year.

It had first been planned to examine the applications of only the 700 who were declared eligible to take the test. The 1300 who were originally ruled out as unqualified will get an additional 18 months to meet experience requirements under the ruling.

YOUNG SCIENTISTS: The Civil Service Commission spent two years in research for its junior scientist and engineer exam now open to applicants. A panel of 50 of the Government's top engineers and scientists helped to prepare the exam. In addition, the test was given to more than 1000 scientists to determine whether the persons who made the highest score could be expected to become the best employes.

The tests will be used to fill about 85 percent of the vacancies in Uncle Sam's scientific and engineering jobs. College sophomores and juniors may compete in the tests for training jobs at salaries beginning at $2650 and $2875 a year, respectively. College seniors and graduates and persons with comparable professional experience may compete for jobs paying up to $3825. The exams will be used to fill jobs of physicist, chemist, metallurgist and electronic scientist, and positions in all major fields of engineering.

Sacchino Sentenced in Embezzling

Ex-Used Car Dealer Gets 2-9 Years for Taking $12,000 From Customers

James W. Sacchino, 49, former used car dealer of 43 Massachusetts ave. nw., yesterday was sentenced to 2-9 years' imprisonment on 15 counts of forging, uttering and embezzling about $12,000 from 13 customers.

Testimony at Sacchino's trial last month brought out that he embezzled money received for cars he sold for a number of customers and forged certificates of title.

The sentence was imposed by Federal Judge James R. Kirkland in District Court.

"Hearts" Couple Sentenced

A middle-aged Washington man and his wife were sentenced by Federal Judge Alexander Holtzoff to 1-3 years apiece for using the mails to defraud in a lonely hearts club scheme.

The defendants, Fred and Helen Stancil, 1377 Massachusetts ave. se., pleaded guilty to charges that they represented themselves as a rich widower and a wealthy widow in a scheme to obtain money and gifts from prospective "mates."

Mrs. Stancil had written the latter that she was just about to inherit $80,000 from her "deceased husband" but the money never materialized.

Man Placed on Probation

William Francis Tydings sr., 52, an electrical engineer of 5430 California st. nw., yesterday drew a severe tongue lashing as well as a 6-18 month suspended sentence from Federal Judge Matthew F. McGuire. He was placed on probation for three years.

Tydings had been convicted of assault with attempt to kill in the severe beating of his wife, Ruth, and his mother in-law, Mrs. E. R. Aull, 72, last September.

"You gave vent to your temper on those unable to defend themselves," McGuire told Tydings. "One of these days you'll meet a man and then you'll really be in trouble . . ."

Odessa Madre Sentenced

Odessa Madre, 41, a familiar figure in gambling and narcotics circles, received a 6-18 month sentence on charges of selling narcotics.

The sentence is to begin after the defendant finishes a 32-month to 8-year sentence imposed last November on similar charges.

Granville E. Duffin, 26, of Lincoln Park, Rockville, Md., was sentenced to serve 3-10 years by Holtzoff on charges of housebreaking and robbery.

Duffin told the court he believed "there was prejudice on the part of the jury."

"How about the fingerprints?" Holtzoff inquired, "Were they not yours?"

"That's what the expert said," Duffin mumbled, "but I don't know where he got them."

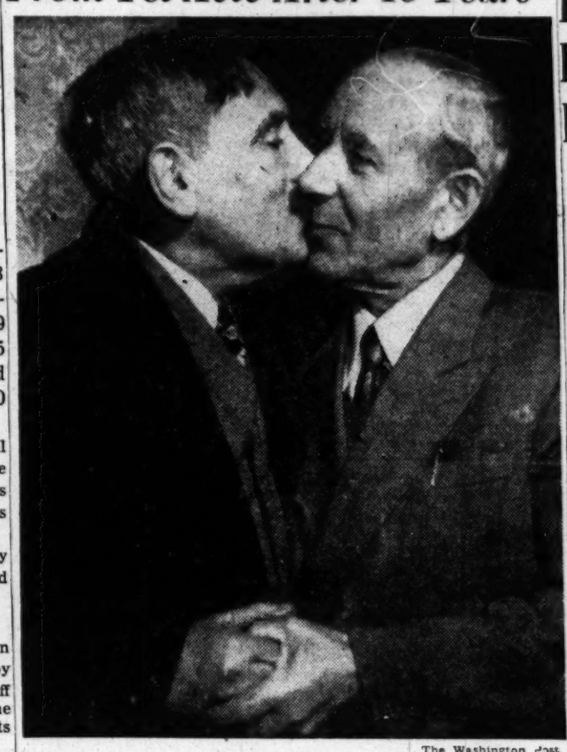
Impersonated a Plumber

Duffin's fingerprints were found in the apartment of Mrs. Eulalia Colwell, 1416 R st. nw. It was testified he entered the apartment by impersonating a plumber. He then slugged, choked and robbed Mrs. Colwell.

Mary L. Benefield, 27, of 507 2d st. nw., received a 5-15 year sentence on manslaughter charges growing out of the fatal stabbing of Wilbert Pollard, 39, of 423 10th st. sw., last July.

Edward Henderson, 22, a Fort Myer soldier was sentenced to serve 2-6 years for a series of store robberies which netted him a total of $400.

Grocer Reunited With Brother From Tel Aviv After 40 Years



The Washington Post

A lot of things can change in 40 years, David Gilbert, Washington groceryman, and his brother, Julius, agreed yesterday.

The brothers saw each other Thursday night for the first time since June 1, 1910, when David, now 60, left the family home in Vilna, which was then in Russia.

Julius, who is three years older, came to Washington from Tel Aviv, Palestine, where he has made his home since 1935.

The major change, a tragic one, in their lives during the almost 40 years of their separation was brought out in David's first words after he had embraced his brother.

Nazis Slew 30 in Family

"Why was I the lucky one of the whole family, why was I spared?" he asked Julius in Jewish, the only language they know in common.

Gilbert explained later that their 76-year-old father, their two brothers, and their three sisters had been murdered by the Nazis early in the last war. Including in-laws, they had lost some 30 members of the family at the hands of the Nazis, he said.

There have been other changes. Their home town, Vilna, passed from Czarist Russia, became Polish territory, then German, and now it is in Lithuania. Julius left Vilna, where he was a typesetter, in 1911 for Kiev in the Ukraine, got married, moved to Kovno, former capital of Lithuania, and after 14 years there went to Tel Aviv in 1935.

He has set type in Jewish, Russian, Polish, German, Hebrew and even English, he said yesterday. He has two daughters, who were both members of the Jewish army.

Names Now Differ

Even the brothers' names are now different, for Julius has kept the family name of Gelbord, while David became David Gilbert when he was naturalized here many years ago.

And, of course, the brothers themselves have changed. A friend, Julius Manset, 5710 5th st. nw., who knew both the brothers in Vilna, was with Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert when they met Mr. and Mrs. Gelbord, and Julius first thought Manset was his brother.

"I wouldn't have known my brother, either," said Gilbert yesterday. The brothers and their wives talked most of the night at Gilbert's home and store, 2401 F st. nw. They will be talking for a long time about the changes in their lives. Julius expects to be here about three months before he returns to Palestine.

Ex-Newsman Dies in Fire Believed Set By Cigarette

J. C. White's Death At Home Laid to Smoke; Once Was On Times-Herald

Joseph C. White, 31, former photographer and assistant picture editor of the Washington Times-Herald, died in a fire yesterday at his home, 3335 Dix st. ne.

White

White was carried from the smoke-filled house by firemen shortly after 4 p. m. and was pronounced dead at the scene by a Casualty Hospital staff doctor. Death apparently was due to smoke asphyxia.

Arthur L. Mims, who lives next door at 3333 Dix st., returned home at about 4 p. m. with his wife and two children. They saw smoke curling from the window jambs of White's home and called firemen.

In the two-story brick house, firemen found a davenport in the living room smoldering. They said it probably had been set afire by a lighted cigarette.

In the kitchen, 20 feet away, firemen stumbled across White's body.

Police said relatives told them White left the employ of the Times-Herald when he was inducted into the Army in January, 1943. He had been unemployed recently, police said.

White is survived by his wife, June, their two children, and his mother, Mrs. Beulah White.

Two Injured In 2-Alarm Oxon Hill Fire

A fireman and a civilian were hurt last night while fighting a two-alarm fire in a $50,000 home at 4410 Wheeler rd., Oxon Hill, Md.

Richard Brown, 40, a neighbor, of 4534 Wheeler rd., was on a porch roof directing a stream of water into an upstairs window of the burning home.

He slipped and fell 12 feet to a concrete sidewalk and fractured his left ankle. He was treated at Casualty Hospital.

Sergt. Frank Keller, 19, of Silver Hill Volunteer Fire Department, was overcome by smoke.

The fire was discovered at about 6 p. m. by the owner of the home, George W. Salsberry. He notified the Oxon Hill fire department and the Silver Hill fire department also responded.

When Oxon Hill Fire Chief Charles Arnold arrived he ordered a second alarm, which brought two engine companies from the District and volunteer companies from District Heights, Morningside, Hillside and Boulevard Heights.

The fire was confined to the second floor. Salsberry, who said he had listed the house for sale at $50,000, estimated the damage at $5000.

Anti-Freeze Explodes, Smoker Badly Burned

Taylor was treated at Emergency Hospital for first and second degree burns to his face, hands, arms and chest. He was later transferred to Gallinger Hospital, where his condition was described as fair.

Fireman Injures Back In Fall at Blaze

Doyle, who lives at 5519 Park Lane ct. se, was admitted to Emergency Hospital.

Notables Due At Fete for Sesqui Today

Ceremony Will Mark Ground-Breaking for Rustic Amphitheater

Construction of the 5000-seat Sesquicentennial amphitheater in Rock Creek Park will officially get under way today, following elaborate ground-breaking ceremonies to be attended by Federal, city and stage dignitaries.

Oscar L. Chapman, Secretary of Interior, will turn the first spade of earth with a red-white-and-blue shovel. Then workmen will turn to aiming to complete the rustic outdoor theater for the scheduled June 15, 1950, opening of the Sesqui symphonic drama there.

Metropolitan Opera Singer Claudia Pinza, flying here from New York for the event, will open today's ceremony at 10:30 a. m. with the singing of the National Anthem. Miss Pinza also will sing two solos.

The ceremony will be held at the theater site at Colorado ave. and 16th st. nw.

The full array of Sequicentennial officials will be on hand to mark the start of the first of several structures to be built for next summer's 150th anniversary celebration.

Sesqui Director Edward Boykin will kick off the ceremony. Joseph C. McGarraghy, chairman of the Sesqui's executive committee, will be master of ceremonies.

And Paul Green, who is writing the symphonic drama-depicting the life of George Washington—will come here from North Carolina to outline his plans for the pageant, and give a little idea of how he visualizes the District's first full-scale amphitheater. It will be a permanent structure, built of native stone, and will be managed by National Capital Parks.

The historic Monticello Guard from Charlottesville, Va., will present arms and unfurl the American flag.

Among notables expected to attend are: Lindsay C. Warren, comptroller general; the District Commissioners; Frederick P. H. Siddons, Board of Trade president; Robert Breen, executive secretary of the American National Theater and Academy; Raymond Massey, the actor; and Miss Helen M. Bailey, United States vice consul at Naples, Italy.

'Family Friend'

Intimacies Denied in Divorce Suit

A District cab driver, accused of intimacies with attractive Mrs. Eva Robinson, contended in Prince Georges County Circuit Court yesterday his association with her has been merely that of a "family friend."

The cabbie, who works in Washington but lives in Manhattan Beach, Md., has been singled out by John G. Robinson, jr., seeking an absolute divorce on grounds of adultery, as the man with whom Mrs. Robinson was guilty of misconduct on frequent occasions both before and after the Robinsons separated on April 30 of this year.

Testifying as a witness for the defendant, he admitted making frequent taxi trips with Mrs. Robinson, but insisted they resulted from a business arrangement which originated in his friendship for both Mrs. Robinson and her husband. Some of the trips, he testified, were instigated by Robinson who, the witness contended, accompanied him and Mrs. Robinson.

Earlier in the trial, in its fourth day yesterday, Mrs. Robinson, who lives at 125 B st. se., said she frequently engaged the cab driver because both she and her husband were friendly toward him. She repeatedly denied any acts of intimacy.

During his more than two hours on the witness stand, the taxi driver flatly denied an allegation by the complainant that he was caught in an act of adultery with Mrs. Robinson in his parked taxi the night of June 2. Both Robinson and a private detective previously had testified they surprised the couple on a darkened street in southeast Washington on that occasion.

The witness produced a manifest, dated June 2, which, he said showed that he was busy transporting fares at about the time of the alleged act.

Robinson, an employe of the Naval Research Laboratory, who now lives at 4503 Queensberry rd., Riverdale, not only is seeking an absolute divorce, but permanent custody of their 6-year-old daughter, Regina. Temporary custody has been granted the complainant's parents, with whom he lives, pending completion of the trial.

Press Club Elects Mobley As President

John Norris of The Post And Theodore Koop of WTOP Also Chosen

Radford E. Mobley, for the past 20 years Washington correspondent for the John S. Knight papers, was named president of the National Press Club of Washington at its annual elections yesterday.

Mobley

Carson F. Lyman, managing editor of United States News & World Report, was elected vice president. Both officers were unopposed, and gained 493 out of a possible 510 votes, in the heaviest balloting in the club's history.

Two local newsmen were among other officers named. They were John G. Norris, national reporter for The Washington Post, who defeated William S. Pryor of The Washington Times-Herald for the post of financial secretary, 368 to 136; and Theodore F. Koop, of WTOP and CBS, who was one of three selected for three-year terms on the board of governors.

Lucian C. Warren of the Buffalo Courier-Express was elected secretary (280 votes) over Paul J. McGahan of the Philadelphia Inquirer (155) and Frank Rogers of the Los Angeles Daily News (70).

George W. Combs of the Baltimore Evening Sun (480) was unopposed for treasurer.

In addition to Koop (386), Charles A. Robichaud of the Chicago Sun-Times (428) and James E. Warner of the New York Herald Tribune (343) were named to the board of governors. Nicholas P. Gregory of the Philadelphia Inquirer (308) ran fourth.

The new club president is a Phi Beta Kappa graduate from the University of Alabama, and assistant bureau chief for the Knight papers, which include the Miami Herald, the Chicago Daily News, the Detroit Free Press and the Akron Beacon-Journal.

Petitions Out For Referendum On Bond Issue

The drive for a referendum on the proposed $10,500,000 school bond issue for Fairfax County got under way last night at Franklin-Sherman Elementary School, McLean, Va.

Petitions put out by the School Emergency Association were circulated at the annual Christmas celebration of the school P-TA.

According to Newell Blair, chairman of the association's petition committee, it is hoped to have the signatures of around 3000 registered voters by January 10. Only 1000 signatures are necessary to gain a referendum, he pointed out.

Blair said the petitions would be circulated in every section of Fairfax County. When sufficient signatures are obtained, the petitions will be handed to the school board, he said. In turn, the board has promised to request the county Circuit Court to order the referendum.

Student Wants Name to Conform With Spenser's

Donald Braden Spencer, 2800 Woodland dr. nw., yesterday asked District Court to change his name to Don Braden Spenser, the spelling used, he said, by his paternal ancestor, Edmund Spenser, sixteenth century poet and author of the "Faerie Queen."

In his petition, Spencer said the name "Spenser" is a name "cherished" by him and his family and "preferred" by his wife. The petition said his family name was Spenser up to the time of his grandfather "or great-grandfather."

Spencer is 28 and a student at George Washington University where he is majoring in English.

Convict Enjoys Hour of Freedom In Escape Try

An hour after he plunged through a wooded ravine to freedom, police yesterday nabbed a convict who had been working on a brush-clearing project near Great Falls, Va.

The convict, Earl Silas Kinder, 22, took to his heels shortly before 4 p. m. yesterday, Fairfax police said.

Virginia State Trooper David McCullum caught Kinder about 5 p. m. less than a mile away on old Georgetown rd. near McLean. He offered no resistance. The trooper took Kinder to Prison Camp 30, near Fairfax.

Fairfax police said Kinder is serving 11 years for robbery.

Trial Board Fines Detective $250 for Property He Mislaid

A plainclothes detective was fined a total of $250 yesterday by a police trial board after admitting he had failed to turn in property to the property clerk on two occasions and had made a false statement to his captain.

The detective was Pvt. Francis Lear of the Ninth Precinct, who was also transferred to the Second Precinct, and assigned to uniformed duty. His suspension from duty was lifted as of yesterday.

Lear, who is 37, mislaid two lots of property seized in connection with two criminal cases, according to testimony by Capt. Irvin H. Umbaugh of the Ninth Precinct.

In one case, an alarm clock, 10 travelers' checks and about $42 in cash involved in a court case last August 25 were not turned in by Lear to the property clerk until December 8, Captain Umbaugh said. He had previously told the captain he thought the property had been turned in, but later found it in a boot in his locker, Lear testified.

In the second case, a bag containing about $50 in stolen cash had been turned over to the detective and was never found. Lear testified he honestly thought he had turned it in, and so told the captain. It was brought out later that he had made up the loss.

Captain Umbaugh said Lear, who has been on the force since 1938, has been "excellent" in his assignments, adding that he did not know a better man in the precinct. His work led to the arrest of two juveniles responsible for 60 housebreakings, he said, and he had planned to recommend him for a commendation.

Entire Police Force Alerted For Youth Who Escaped Net

The entire Washington Police Department was alerted yesterday to search for a "thrill-crazy" 18-year-old youth wanted for questioning in a number of crimes.

The boy escaped Thursday afternoon in a chase in which 10 police cars and a motorcycle patrolman pursued him through the Southeast Washington area where he formerly lived.

He is wanted for:

A grand larceny of $600 last August at St. Francis Xavier Church.

Questioning in the murder-holdup on December 6 of Winston C. Clay in a Berwyn, Md., filling station.

Participation last Sunday with three juveniles now under arrest in theft of seven autos in the Southeast area.

The boy's family moved two years ago to a small Maryland town after living for many years in the Southeast section of Washington.

The boy's mother said yesterday that though he has not been home for some time, she is not worried about him because he can take care of himself.

The pursuit started Thursday after the boy appeared at the home of a former school associate and asked for him. He was not home, but the boy's father notified a motorcycle patrolman that the wanted lad was nearby. The motorcycle man chased but lost him.

Mrs. Anne Dulany Leaves Estate Valued at $324,000

Mrs. Anne Carter Dulany, 2230 California st. nw., who died December 11, left an estate valued at $324,000, it was shown in a petition for probate of her 1941 will filed yesterday in District Court.

Mrs. Dulany was the widow of H. Rozier Dulany, former member of the board of Riggs National Bank who died in 1940.

The bulk of the estate was left to a son, H. Rozier Dulany, jr., now dead.

The latter was survived by three children: Benjamin Dulany, 2230 California st. nw., an attorney; Mrs. Juliette Roby, of Philadelphia; and Miss Anne W. Dulany, 2445 California st. nw., who presumably are next in line for the bequest.

Outright bequests of $5000 apiece were left to Dulany and Mrs. Roby. Anne Dulany was bequeathed the proceeds of a $20,000 trust fund until she is 25 years old when she will receive the principal. She is now 14.

Included in the estate are 15 acres of ground situated in Fauquier County, Va.

Man With Key to Girl's Room Quizzed in Jean Costello Death

A man who admitted having had a duplicate key to the room of pretty Jean Costello, 21, whose death is suspected to have been the result of an abortion, yesterday made a sworn statement to police.

The man, questioned several hours by homicide detectives, insisted he had never had intimate relations with the girl.

He said that if any illegal surgery had been performed on the Capital Airlines reservationist he knew nothing about it. He said he had visited the girl's room in connection with typing work she did for him.

Also questioned yesterday were two doctors who examined the girl Thursday at her room, 1747 F st. nw.

She was rushed to Georgetown University Hospital Friday. Saturday night she was flown to a Boston hospital in hope an artificial kidney, available there, might save her life. Tuesday she died.

Dr. William J. Brickley, Boston area medical examiner, after performing an autopsy, stated blood poisoning resulting from a punctured uterus caused death. He said she had been four months pregnant.

Washington police are still awaiting results of analysis of internal organs ordered by the Boston medical examiner. Results may indicate when and how the suspected abortion was performed.

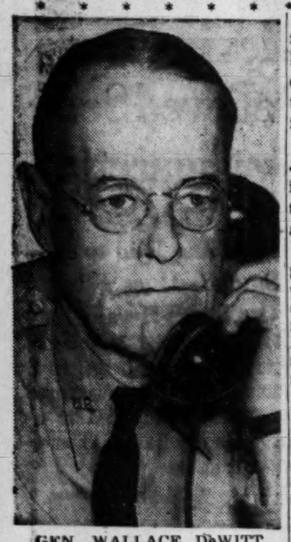
Brig. Gen. DeWitt Dies in California



GEN. WALLACE DeWITT

Brig. Gen. Wallace DeWitt, 71, former commander of the Army Medical Center here, died Thursday at Letterman General Hospital, San Francisco, Calif., his family here learned yesterday.

He was a brother of Lieut. Gen. John L. Dewitt, who commanded in California at the outbreak of the last war and removed the Japanese from the West Coast.

General Dewitt was born at Fort Steele, Wyo., on June 1, 1878, and was graduated from the University of Pennsylvania in 1900 with a medical degree. He entered the Army almost immediately, and served until his retirement on February 8, 1945.

In his early years, General DeWitt served two tours of duty in the Phillippines, during the first of which he was under fire by insurrectionists. He returned to this country in 1902, but went back to the Philippines in 1906.

Subsequently, he served at a number of posts in the United States, until the first World War, when he went to France with the Eigthy-third Division. After returning, he served in various posts in the United States as a hospital and medical administrator, winning recognition for his administrative ability.

He commanded the Army Medical Center at Walter Reed Hospital from 1935 to 1939. In 1940, he was made commander of Letterman General Hospital and the same year was placed in command of all Army medical facilities at the Port of Embarkation, San Francisco. He retired in 1945.

Surviving General DeWitt are a son, Wallace DeWitt, jr., of San Francisco; his mother, Mrs. Calvin DeWitt, and a sister, Mrs. R. M. Blanchard, both of 2220 20th st. nw., and two brothers, Lieut. Gen. John L. DeWitt (ret.), 3505 Davis st. nw., and Col. Calvin DeWitt, jr., now with the European command at Heidelberg, Germany.

Funeral services have not yet been arranged, but burial will be at Arlington Cemetery.

Pittsburgh, Dec. 16 (AP).—Judge John J. O'Connell of the Third United States Circuit Court of Appeals died of a heart attack this morning at his home in suburban Mount Lebanon. Judge O'Connell, 55, was appointed to the Apellate Court in Philadelphia by President Truman in 1945.

R. B. Posey, Consultant For VA, Dies

Funeral services will be held for Richard Berry Posey, 75, retired Veterans Administration insurance consultant, at 2 p. m. today at the Hines funeral home, 2901 14th st. nw. Burial will be in Edinburg, Ind.

Mr. Posey, who was descended from an old Charles County, Md. family, died Thursday at Sibley Memorial Hospital after several weeks' illness. He lived at the Broadmoor Apartments, 3601 Connecticut ave. nw.

Born on the Posey farm, "Moore's Regained," near Doncaster in Charles County, Mr. Posey was a graduate of Georgetown University Law School.

For a number of years he was an executive in an Indianapolis, Ind., insurance company. In 1918, he returned to Washington as an insurance consultant for the VA, remaining there until his retirement in 1946.

A Mason, he belonged to Harmony Lodge No. 17. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Merle Ashby Posey, and a daughter, Mrs. Mary Posey Curren, Philadelphia.

Yule Mail Breaks All Records For City, and Peak Is Not Yet

The Washington Post

Mail handler George Spire dumps another load of Christmas mail

Washington postoffices are doing their biggest business in history, a check yesterday revealed. And the peak hasn't been reached yet.

On Thursday of this week, for example, incoming mail totaled 50,000 parcels and 2,385,000 letters, outgoing 280,000 parcels and 3,380,000 letters.

Counting business letters and the rest of the usual traffic, Washingtonians probably will send out 60 million letters and cards this Christmas season and five million to seven million packages. Postmaster Roy North said yesterday. They will receive something like 40 million letters and 1,250,000 parcels.

Washington, by the way, always sends far more than it receives at Christmas, which should prove local generosity once and for all.

Another factor, Postmaster North said, is that people here have a lot of kinfolks back home and send them individual packages, whereas the kinfolks get together and send one big package to Jane G-Girl in Washington.

Business this year is way ahead of last for this time in the season. Highest postal revenue day all last year was $130,000 while one day this week it reached $131,000. And peak days won't be until next week—December 22 usually for outgoing, 24 for incoming.

Some 4700 temporary helpers, including 1000 carriers, have been added to the regular force of 4900.

Mrs. Holt Dies; Lived 77 Years In Same Block

Mrs. Sarah Catherine Holt, 77, who lived in the same Georgetown block all her life and had never been outside of the District, died of cancer yesterday after six months' illness.

Her husband, William E. Holt, a landscape gardener, has also lived in the same block all his life. They went to school together in a little frame schoolhouse at 33d st. and Wisconsin ave. nw.

For the past 32 years, Mr. and Mrs. Holt have lived in the same house at 1824 35th st. nw.

Her mother-in-law, Mrs. Catherine Holt, who died six years ago at the age of 101, was also a lifelong resident of Georgetown and once owned a dairy farm on the present site of Western High School.

Mrs. Holt leaves six children, 20 grandchildren and 19 great grandchildren, in addition to her husband.

Sunday—Second and Final Installment of

MONTGOMERY COUNTY'S SCHOOL PROBLEM

AGNES E. MEYER

Mrs. Meyer

What problems were thrown at Montgomery County parents, taxpayers and educators by the 50 percent increase in school enrollment in the past five years? What has the county done about these problems? What is it doing right now? What can it afford to do in the future?

Agnes E. Meyer, known for her brilliant and sympathetic analyses of social problems, has spent six weeks in an exhaustive investigation into the problems of Montgomery County's schools. In the first of two articles, last Sunday, she told of Montgomery's skyrocket population growth and the terrific load carried by the teachers because of inadequate facilities.

In the second article this Sunday, Mrs. Meyer discusses whether even wealthy Montgomery County can finance the extensive school construction with which it is obviously faced for years to come.

Nothing so affects the pocketbook of the taxpayer, the interests of the parent, and the future of the county as this subject of Montgomery's schools. Be sure to read this final article—ask your newsdealer to save you a Sunday Post, or phone NAtional 4200 for Post home delivery.

About Making Pheasant Hat; How to Refurbish Luggage; How to Waterproof Paper

I have a pheasant which I would like to have made into a hat. Can you tell me who might do this work for me? M. H. F.

Take the bird to a millinery firm, such as the one on 11th st. (telephone National 8322). When they see the bird they will be able to advise you just how to use it on a hat in a style becoming to you. If, when they see it, they feel it needs some preservation, then take it to a taxidermist who will treat the skin and feathers. Because this sort of treatment sets the feathers you should have a definite idea of the way the bird is to be used when you visit the taxidermist. If you wish it set on a crown, take the crown with you and the taxidermist will mount them directly on it.

One taxidermist who will do this sort of work can be reached by calling Appleton 1900.

Please publish where I could find an apartment bird house, such as used by Purple Martins. This gift will be going to Kentucky so I would appreciate the name of a dealer in that area, if possible. M. J. T.

Can anyone give us this information?

I stored some Oskosh luggage in the basement and recently discovered the pieces were covered with water, mildew, and rust stains. The type of material used in this luggage is unknown to me. However, it is a beige, hand-finish material that might be plastic but looks like cloth and is trimmed with brown calf. Kindly advise if there is any method for removing these stains. Incidentally, I tried using a mild abrasive, but that did not help. R. R. R.

It is almost impossible to remove mildew and rust from materials such as luggage. Since an abrasive did not budge the stains, I don't know of anything which is safe to use on the material which will.

However, you can refurbish the luggage by going over it with a plastic coating especially designed for leathers and imitation leathers. This can be purchased in many colors at a paint store on 13th st. which can be reached by calling District 1130.

If there is a musty odor on the inside of the luggage, this can be removed by spraying it with a deodorizer which is also a mildew preventive. This has a trade name with the word mildew in it and can be bought where moth preventives are carried in housewares departments.

We are to attend a formal dinner in January at the Officers Club in honor of my husband's graduation from a Navy school. The date being two months before my baby is due, I am ignorant as to what to wear. Could you please tell me where I could get such information? Or would it not be considered proper for me to attend? M. J. L.

By all means go to the dinner! You can buy maternity dinner gowns at stores which sell maternity dresses. Or, if you did not wish to go to the expense of buying a complete dress for the occasion, evening jackets are sold to be worn with separate skirts. You may have an evening skirt you could adapt to be worn with a long jacket type blouse, or if you are handy you could make one for a few dollars.

I'm told that women who buy maternity evening jackets use them later as jackets for lounging pajamas.

I have a handpainted border (paper) which I want to put in my bathroom. Can you tell me a simple, inexpensive way to waterproof it? I had thought of covering it with clear plastic fabric, but I'm hoping there is an easier way. P. A.

There is a wallpaper lacquer on the market which is applied with a brush and will waterproof the paper. It does not in any way change the appearance of the paper. It can be purchased at a paint store on New York ave. which can be reached by calling National 1464.

A light scorch mark on a pale blue wool dress did not come out when the dress was cleaned. I have tried both soap and water and a weak solution of hydrogen peroxide but the mark is still there. Have you any suggestion for removing it? E. H.

Did you apply the hydrogen peroxide by steaming it? This method is sometimes more effective in removing scorch than just sponging the peroxide on. Since the dress is colored be sure to try the method first on an inside part to test the effect on the color.

The steam method for applying hydrogen peroxide is: Dampen a white cloth with peroxide and lay it on the stain. Cover this with a dry white cloth and press with a medium warm iron. If the hydrogen peroxide soaks through the top cloth, replace it with a dry one. If you iron directly on the wet cloth, you could cause rust stains to develop on the wool.

The entire treatment may be repeated if the stain is not completely removed the first time.

I am embroidering a cut-work table set, and while the work looks good, I can not cut the material beneath to look as neat and cleanly finished as those I see in the stores. If I shear too closely, the threads break away, and if I do not, the edges look somewhat ragged. I have good sharp embroidery scissors. I have tried clipping the material after washing and ironing the finished piece, as was suggested by one salesgirl in the needlework department, then washing and ironing again and clipping any remaining stray bits of frayed, taggled ends, but this does not give me the neat finish back and front that I desire. There must be a right way. Can you find out for me? L. C. M.

The best advice I can get to prevent fraying on cut work embroidery is to wash and iron the piece before doing any cutting. Since this method, did not eliminate fraying for you, I'm wondering if you are placing your stitches closely together. The stitches should be as close as they can be placed, so that the edge, when cut, is firmly bound. If this doesn't completely eliminate fraying, then perhaps the material upon which you are doing the work is not woven firmly enough or the thread you are using is too fine.

U. S. Women Advised To Work Actively for Continental Solidarity

By Genevieve Reynolds

SENORA AMALIA DE CASTILLO LEDON of Mexico City, new chairman of the Inter-American Commission of Women, yesterday called upon the women of this country to work actively for continental solidarity and understanding. She issued the challenge in her maiden speech as commission chairman.

The occasion was a welcoming ceremony and reception given in her honor by the Pan American Liaison Committee of Women's Organizations. Scene of the colorful event was the Hall of the Americas in the Pan American Union.

"The cause of continental solidarity awaits volunteers who are willing to fight for it," Senora de Castillo Ledon told representatives of 94 women's organizations, high-ranking diplomats and their wives, and members of official and residential society.

Calls for Equality of Opportunity

At the same time the senora, who is an educator, playwright, feminist leader, national and international leader, pledged the commission's all-out effort to translate legal equality into actualities. "Now that women have won legal equality in most of our countries, we must translate equality of words into equality of practice," she declared.

SENORA DE CASTILLO LEDON

"Women must be given equality of opportunity so that they may grow into a complete person and a useful citizen."

Senora de Castillo Ledon said that the basic reason for making equality of women a reality is that of human dignity.

"Recognition of this principle is the foundation of political democracy," she averred, "and democracy is not masculine or feminine, it is human."

Dr. Alberto Lleras, secretary-general, Organization of American States, paid tribute to both the commission and Senora de Castillo Ledon.

Quietly and efficiently the commission has carried out its chief aim of obtaining political and civil rights for women in Latin America, Dr. Lleras declared. In obtaining the goals he gave special credit to Miss Minerva Bernardino, immediate past chairman of the commission, who held the post since 1938 until her resignation las summer at the commission's conference in Buenos Aires.

In her speech, Senora de Castillo Ledon also paid tribute to Miss Bernardino's work and pointed out that it was under Miss Bernardino's direction that the commission directed the founding of the Pan American Liaison Commission in 1944.

Both the Secretary General and Senora de Castillo Ledon said that since the creation of the commission 21 years ago more than half the Latin American countries have granted full legal rights to women.

Tribute by Judge Matthews

Mrs. Burnita Shelton Matthews, judge of the United States District Court for the District of Columbia, and Mexico's Ambassador Senor don Rafael de la Colina paid high tribute to the new commission chairman.

Judge Matthews remarked, "I feel like a sort of godmother to the Inter-American Commission of Women."

She gave as her reason, "I participated in the National Woman's Party's conferences leading up to the organization of the commission at the Havana Conference in January, 1928."

According to Judge Matthews the IACW had made sufficient strides in obtaining equal rights for women to warrant the respect of all citizens.

Ambassador de Colina told how Senora de Castillo Ledon had founded and directed the Organization of the Mexican Theater, giving encouragement and help to young playwrights and actors. He said that she had organized the Mexican Antheneum for Women, the International Women's Club and the Intellectual Workers' Group.

Junior League to Send Gifts to Young Heart Patients

Chase

HERE are just a few of the 320 Christmas presents Washington Junior Leaguers are sending out this year. They are gifts to the young members of the In-Bed-Club of the Washington Heart Association. All the children suffer from a heart ailment which keeps them in bed most of the time. Turning the packages over to postal clerk William Baumgartner are Mrs. William Howard (center) and Mrs. David Varner of the Junior League

RECENT volunteers to the ranks of Santa's Helpers are members of the Junior League of Washington.

These popular young ladies are now busy with plans to make this Christmas an especially merry one for the 320 boys and girls of the In-Bed Club of the Washington Heart Association.

All members of the club suffer from a heart ailment which keeps them in bed most of the time. So the Junior Leaguers have bought a special present for each of the youngsters—scrap books, painting sets, jigsaw puzzles, and similar items, and they are wrapping and mailing them personally to each child.

Mrs. Raymond A. Norris is in charge of the shopping for the gifts, and Mrs. William Howard, Mrs. David Varner and Miss Olive Watson also have helped with the project.

The Junior League always has done volunteer work for the In-Bed Club children. League members edit and publish a monthly magazine for the youngsters, regularly send them birthday and other greeting cards, and conduct contests and similar recreational activities by mail.

Committees to Coordinate Work for Sesquicentennial

By Nicha Soure

IF YOU'RE human, you're wondering at this point why you didn't start shopping earlier for Christmas.

To avoid the last-minute rush of plans for the Sesquicentennial celebration, the Conference of State Society Officers met Monday and the groundwork for the State societies' participation was laid.

Carl M. Walker, chairman of the conference, has divided the group into committees to coordinate the activities of the conference and the State societies. The States' officers were asked to contact their home Governors with respect to naming an appropriate date for each State's celebration in Washington.

The conference will support the New Year's Eve Ball at the Armory, where the State flags will be displayed.

DAVE McWILLIAMS, who has played for a great many of the State society dances, is sponsoring a New Year's Eve dance in the main ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel.

WOULD you like to see Santa Claus tonight?

Come on down to the Ohio State Society party in the Congressional Room of the Willard Hotel and you will see Old Saint Nick.

The dance will be from 9 p. m. to midnight with Johnny Plant and his orchestra furnishing the music. The dance will be free to persons holding membership cards.

For further information about the society, call John S. Bartlett at MIchigan 0860.

PUT ON your best bib and tucker and meander down to the Tar Heels' Mistletoe Mingle tonight.

It'll be held in the large ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel, 10 p. m. until 1 a. m. There will be some of the popular Christmas greens around at the party but to make certain, tuck a sprig of mistletoe in your curls or in your coat lapel.

The added attraction at the dance will be the Dance of the Christmas Belles by the North Carolina younger set.

SHOW ME STATERS will celebrate tonight, too, in the west ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel. Dancing will begin at 10 p. m. and on hand to greet the guests will be Clarence McCune, president of the Missouri Society, assisted by Mrs. Eric Jansson and Mrs. Maxwell Foster.

EMPIRE STATERS will start the new year with a dance on January 7 in the main ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel.

The Justice Department will be the government department to be honored at the New York State Society's first dance in 1950. A reception will be held at 9:30 p. m. to be followed by dancing until 1 a. m.

The Family Scrapbook

By Dr. Ernest O. Osborne

For the last few weeks it is likely that children in many schools have been making Christmas gifts for Mom and Dad and perhaps for Brother and Sister, Grandma and Grandpa and other members of the family. Most youngsters enjoy making simple gifts and most grown-ups like to get a present on which junior members of the family have put time and effort.

At home, too, the children can be encouraged to make gifts. Here are a few of the more simple, easily made articles they will enjoy working on:

1. Ash trays and paper weights from self-hardening clay. These are easily formed, take paint well and need not be baked in order to be lasting gifts.

2. Pot-holders for mother. These can be made by even the beginning seamstress. Gaily colored cloth sewed over folded pieces of flannel or other similar material with a small plastic ring fastened in one corner from which to hang the holder, makes a useful and attractive present.

3. Doorstops, though considered old fashioned, are still useful in keeping doors open on the breezy days that come in summertime. Covering a brick with thick cloth is one of the simplest ways to make a substantial doorstop.

These are but a few of the gifts that even young children can make. If you're ready to admire their work and to give a helping hand when the youngsters get "stuck," they'll get a lot of satisfaction out of making their own gifts to give away at Christmas.

One on the Aisle—

It's Lunts' Year, Despite the Play

By Richard L. Coe

NEW YORK.—It is no mere fiftieth wedding anniversary being celebrated on the stage of the Shubert Theater these nights. By simple arithmetic, call it a seventy-fifth and you have the reason for standing room audiences at a pale but pleasant play.

The Lunts—Alfred L. and Lynn Fontanne—are costarring in "I Know My Love," an adaptation of a French play ("Aupres de Ma Blonde") of Marcel Achard. It's the year of their own twenty-fifth wedding anniversary and, with a play that runs backward to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of a Boston couple, the evening they offer is a sentimental saturnalia dedicated to 75 years of marriages.

Now, no matter how the critical circles may moan and the cognoscenti bewail the slightness of their vehicle, it's quite apparent the Lunts are giving their guests enchantment that audiences enjoy. The appeal of the theater is emotional, and there's no one watching the play who isn't at least dimly aware of the Lunts' own romantic story.

For they are a couple who have played together longer than the famed partnerships of Henry Irving and Ellen Terry, who costarred 24 years, and Edward Sothern and Julia Marlowe, who were partners 22 years, on stage and off. This is the twenty-first play in which they have appeared as a team.

Washington enters into this, for it was in the summer of 1919 that they appeared here in stock, one week each for "Maid of Money" and "A Young Man's Fancy." When they met, it's been frequently recorded, Alfred fell flat on his face. They didn't marry, though, 'till May 26, 1922; in October, '24, they first began their costarring for the Theater Guild in Molnar's "The Guardsman."

Unfortunately, as a play, "I Know My Love" is a far cry from the Hungarian's frisky do. It tells, with few of Behrman's once-glittering lines, of the struggles of Boston's Thomas Chanlers to weather marriage. The misunderstandings you've seen scores of times on stage and screen beset them, their family is like many another you've seen, and the things they have to say are distinctly perishable.

Curiously Enchanting

But the perishable has often been the Lunts' metier. Their lesser vehicles abound in the flimsy, border, indeed, on soap opera. Yet, the affectionate grace with which they handle situations that in other hands would be intolerable, even on the citronella circuit, remains curiously enchanting.

When Miss Fontanne murmurs the wisdom of her sex, when Lunt boils with masculine indignation, they each do so with that skill of communication that makes each one of their audience feel a flattering mirror is being placed before him. In short, their views of 1939, 1888, 1902, 1918 and 1920 are pleasant trifles raised to the level of souffle.

The fact remains, of course, that it would be far more stimulating and less profligate for us to be seeing this skilled pair in a play more worthy of them. While one can't expect them in "The Guardsman," "The Doctor's Dilemma," "Elizabeth the Queen," "Reunion in Vienna," "Amphitryon 38," "The Sea Gull" or "There Shall Be No Night" every time they appear, and while one assumes they have searched dilligently for a more fruitful script, it does seem a pity their present success will no doubt confine them to trifling for several more years.

Lunt has directed the able company with his knowledgable eye, the speaking of all is above average and the production itself is of highest quality.

And for a sentimental, pleasant evening, you couldn't do better than the Lunts in their twenty-fifth anniversary year.

WASHINGTON — Today brings back four old favorites to two downtown houses. The Warner revives "A Farewell to Arms," the Ernest Hemingway story with Helen Hayes and Gary Cooper, and "The Hatchet Man," with Edward G. Robinson and Loretta Young orientalized. Both were made in 1932.

GENE KLAVAN, the WTOP humorist, threatens to revive vaudeville by appearing on the Capitol stage for the week beginning today. Radio, he thinks, can help revive vaudeville and so save the movies now threatened by TV. Anyway, the man says he's a sensation and is willing to help the movies and the palazzos rise to new glories. The Capitol's picture is "Border Incident," with Ricardo Montalban and George Murphy down Mexico way.

THEATER GUILD subscribers who have tickets for Christmas eve, matinee or evening, for Baltimore's incoming "Summer and Smoke," may effect a swap for other performances if they so choose, states Bess Davis Schreiner, Guild manager. Miss Schreiner's office in the National Theater mezzanine is open Saturdays, Tuesdays and Thursdays from noon till 5 o'clock.

DeMille and Paramount are now spending a fortune to educate you up to fullest appreciation of this spectacle that probably won't be here for months

An Army of Participants

A Chinese-Style Production Is Ably Done by G. W. Players

ONLY A YEAR AGO it would have been impossible for the George Washington University Players to have offered so able and well-detailed a production as the one which tonight closes its brief Lisner Auditorium career.

The play is "The Yellow Jacket," by George C. Hazelton and J. Harry Benrimo, which served Charles and Mrs. Coburn as cross-country material 30 years ago. It's a simple story done in the Chinese style—a chorus to explain the action to the audience, property men to supply simple and symbolical props and costumes of great elegance.

Under the direction of William Vorenberg, a veritable army of actors and technicians has produced the play with fascinating care. Nothing has been left to chance, the performance is smooth and punctilious and the technicalities are able.

Upon whether you are familiar with this style of theater depends your fullest enjoyment of the evening. In recent memory there have been such similar works as "Lady Precious Stream" and "Lute Song." The one-act play world has its representatives, too, including the Japanese-styled "Good and Obedient Young Man," done several years ago by the Alexandria Little Theater.

Large Cast

Such Occidentalizations as these are, to be sure, mercifully pat and brief to Westerners who've sat before true Chinese dramas in New York, San Francisco or London's Soho. The Oriental lack of time sense is necessarily inimical to our souls and the result is stranger than the strange.

In this story of a young man's efforts to assert his rights to a royal throne, the G. W. cast is impressive. While it is too large to enumerate all, there are outstanding virtues in many.

Charles Vorbach's property man is a splendid pantomime. As in "Dark of the Moon," this young man is working with his body, and as the bored and stooped carryer-of-all-things, he's fine. John Green's chorus is spoken with apt dryness, and he's to be commended for being able to reel off without self-consciousness such names as Woo Win Yin, Due Jung Fah, Tai Fah Min, Suey Sin Fah and Woo Hoo Git, who happens to be the hero.

Music Effective

Of the many young ladies, I thought Dionne Dalton, as a prying maiden who gets her head lopped off, utterly charming, a Myrna Loy of her Chinese vampire days. Ruth Mills, Davie Rogers, Dorothy Ohliger and Barbara Kananack are other important ladies.

Especially admirable is Lawrence Strawbridge, a spirited and well-spoken young man who brought the virtue of vitality to the role of the hapless farmer condemned to behead a governor's wife. It is difficult in such surroundings to seem more than a pallid figure, but Strawbridge gave the fellow vigor and bemused humor.

Donald Muir's music and Robert Burns Stevens' settings deserve comment, as do the costumes prepared by a large corps of lassies. Under L. Poe Leggette, the G. W. University Players are indeed making progress.

U. S. to Offer Belasco Theater For Shows Without Race Ban

Jess Larson, General Services administrator, announced yesterday that GSA is drafting a lease for the Belasco Theater to be offered to the American National Theater and Academy.

ANTA wants to bring legitimate shows back to Washington, but on a nondiscriminatory basis.

Larson, in a letter to Robert Breen, executive secretary of ANTA, also invited direct discussion between ANTA and GSA.

Will Confer on Draft of Lease

"We shall begin immediately," his letter said, "to prepare a lease form embodying all requisite terms and provisions and will invite you to discuss it with us in draft form as soon as we can get it into presentable shape."

Larson promised an early search for substitute space for Treasury Department records now housed in the theater at 17 Madison pl. nw.

Larson said that rental for the theater must be of a sufficient amount to reimburse the Government for "all expenses necessary out those activities now occupying and actually incurred in moving space to be leased to you and for the establishment and maintenance of those activities in other suitable quarters."

The building official's letter was in reply to a formal bid by ANTA for the lease of the theater made December 5.

Expects Recompense for Loss

ANTA offered to bear the expense of refurnishing the theater under a 10-year lease, with one year's notice of cancellation by the Government.

Through the offices of Senator Flanders (R., Vt.) and Senator Douglas (D., Ill.), ANTA has received what it considers "reasonable assurance" that should such cancellation occur before the end of the 10 years, it will be recompensed for a portion of its expenses.

Contrary to published reports, the theater organization does not at this time plan on making the Belasco its headquarters, although it will have a Washington staff. Not being a producing organization, ANTA will book into the theater plays of active producers, should the lease be consummated.

Vinton Freedley is president of the organization, Helen Hayes is first vice president; Gilbert Miller, treasurer, and C. Lawton Campbell, chairman of the board.

Eventually, Producer Miller hopes to activate the "academy" part of the ANTA title. Miller has just returned to London after attending ANTA board meetings in New York concerning the Belasco lease.

Larson, meanwhile, was congratulated for his action on th Belasco by thhe Interchurch Fellowship of Washington, an interracial and interfaith group.

Fellowship President Frederick E. Reissing wrote the administrator a letter saying the absence of a legitimate theater in Washington and "the reason why it is absent" have long been a "blot on the city's name and reputation."

Singers to Rehearse

The Washington Opera Guild choral group will hold rehearsal at 1719 19th st. nw., tonight at 7:30. A Christmas party will follow.

Lobbying Data Is Requested

Capitol correspondents yesterday were asked to help the House of Representatives shape its investigation into lobbying in Washington.

Chairman Frank Buchanan (D., Pa.) of the Select Committee on Lobbying Activities has issued a letter to Washington newsmen asking for information on lobbyists and lobbying and for specific suggestions on the conduct of the investigation.

The letter contained the following questions:

"1. Lobbying activities by unregistered persons or organizations.

"2. Undisclosed receipts or expenditures by lobbyists and lobby organizations.

"3. Undisclosed interests behind lobbyists and lobby organizations;

"4. Methods of soliciting or obtaining funds for lobby activities.

"5. Methods of expending funds for lobby activities.

"6. Practices and abuses of lobbyists and lobby organizations.

"7. Specific lobbyists and lobby organizations whose activities, in your opinion, warrant detailed study and investigation.

"8. Violations of 18 U.S.C. 1913 (an anti-lobbying law) restricting lobbying activities by Government officers and employes.

"9. Practices and abuses of Government officers or employes in regard to lobbying.

"10. Specific Government departments, agencies, officers, or employes whose lobbying activities, in your opinion, warrant detailed study and investigation."

The committee was created just before Congress adjourned. It will open public hearings early next year. It is undertaking "a study and investigation of (1) all lobbying activities intended to influence, encourage, promote or retard legislation; and (2) all activities of agencies of the Federal Government intended to influence, encourage, promote, or retard legislation."

U. S. Maturity In Air Seen in Berlin Airlift

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

The Berlin airlift marked the coming of age of American airpower in the broadest sense, Eugene E. Wilson, wartime president of United Aircraft, said yesterday.

Wilson, who is chairman of the board of the National Aeronautic Association, spoke at the organization's annual National Aviation Forum at the Hotel Statler.

This proved importance of the transport airplane, he added, would make it as necessary in another war to keep open the air lanes and deny them to the enemy as use of surface shipping has made it necessary to guard the sea lanes.

Urges Independence

Wilson said airpower "came into its own" in the airlift, "when commercial air transports were called on to pinch-hit for strategic bombers as the spearhead of foreign policy."

On the subject of domestic aviation, Wilson said a Senate investigation had revealed the "self-sufficiency" of the airlines and he urged operators to declare their independence of the Government and "demand return of their economic freedoms.

Wilson, in the keynote speech of the two-day forum, declared "drastic revision" of United States air policy was needed. He especially called for "concerted action" in developing a national air policy which would use airpower for peace.

Fatalism Perilous

"Today," he said, "few of us are disposed to concern ourselves with the morals of bombardment of civil populations, and most of us take it for granted that every weapon available for 'winning' wars will be used . . . However, with civilization even now hanging in the balance, it is reasonable to expect that a fatalistic acceptance of such a military policy may mean the end of civilization."

Wilson was preceded by Louis E. Leverone, NAA president, who declared in his annual report that a survey of resolutions and policy statements by national aviation organizations showed wide disagreement on almost all important subjects. In fact, he said, no more than two such organizations could agree on as many as 10 subjects. Although the first of these was Federal aid for airport construction.

New U. S. Loan Regulations Start Feb. 15

February 15 has been set as the effective date for new regulations banning Government-insured mortgages on property covered by written racial covenants.

The announcement was contained yesterday in joint statements by the Federal Housing Administration and Veterans' Administration. They are the two Government agencies which are issuing amended regulations to bring their racial policies on mortgage financing in line with the Supreme Court decision outlawing racial covenants.

FHA Commissioner Franklin D. Richards announced the ruling would require amendments to 10 sections of the National Housing Act. These are sections covering permanent and emergency mortgage insurance programs, the yield insurance program, and the military housing insurance program.

The Veterans' Administration did not specify type of amendments made to its regulations on home-loan mortgages guaranteed for veterans under the GI bill.

However, VA pointed out that the new regulations will apply to all covenants created and recorded subsequent to February 15, and to all GI mortgages guaranteed or insured by VA after that date. Similar coverage has been announced for FHA-insured mortgages. The regulations are not retroactive.

The regulations will apply as long as the mortgage is insured by the Housing or Veterans' Administrations. If they are violated, the mortgage becomes due immediately.

Announcement of the revision in Government policy was made early this month in New York by Solicitor General Philip B. Perlman.

The new policy supersedes previous determination of the value of property to be insured by the type of neighborhood in which the property is located. The amended regulations reportedly remove this standard, so that the value of a property as set by the Government will not be affected by new race, color or creed trends in the neighborhood.

Dr. Nelson Heads Food, Drug Unit's Medical Staff

By The Associated Press

Dr. Erwin E. Nelson of 4422 N. Dittmar rd., Arlington, yesterday was named medical director for the Food and Drug Administration.

He succeeds Dr. Robert T. Stormont who is resigning after two years' service to become director of the American Medical Association's therapy and research division.

Dr. Nelson served since 1947 as chief of the governmental agency which passes on the safety of new drugs before they are released for public use.

A native of Missouri, he formerly headed the pharmacology department at Tulane University and for a number of years was pharmacology professor at the University of Michigan.

In 1937, Dr. Nelson organized the pharmacology division in the Food and Drug Administration and served as its first director.

Venue Change Pleas Denied In Dope Cases

Mrs. Evelina "Tinky" Roberts, 24, yesterday lost her fight to be tried in a different jurisdiction on charges of acquiring and transferring marihuana last October.

The wife of James Roberts, 41, 744 Girard st. nw., she claimed before Judge Alexander Holtzoff that a picture of herself and her husband in The Washington Post and an article in another newspaper had made it impossible for her to obtain a fair trial.

The Roberts and 30 others were arrested as a result of 14 raids on October 18 by Federal narcotic agents and local police officials.

The motion was quickly denied by Judge Holtzoff after he examined both The Post picture and the newspaper story.

Dorothy Martin, 1333 Kenyon st. nw., asked Judge Edward A. Tamm for a change of venue in her dope case, also charging that The Post picture had created prejudice. She appeared in the picture with the Roberts.

Judge Tamm ruled that the publication of the picture would not prevent her obtaining a fair trial.

Two counts of the four on which the Roberts' were indicted together were thrown out by Judge Holtzoff. In those counts they were charged with failing to pay the transfer tax on "traces" of narcotics found by federal agents on the floor of their apartment and in Mrs. Roberts' purse. Judge Holtzoff ruled that "traces" were too small to interest the law.

Motions to suppress evidence, quash search and arrest warrants, dismiss indictments, and for return of seized property, in other cases steming from the raids, were denied by Judge Holtzoff.

French Reds Fear Inroads of 'Titoism'

Paris, Dec. 16—(NYHT)—Edith Thomas, novelist and journalist who joined the French Communist Party in 1942 during the Nazi occupation, announced her resignation today in the leftist newspaper, Combat.

Many non-Communist observers thought that other intellectuals might follow her lead. The Communist press has been concerned with possible inroads "Titoism" may be making in the party's ranks.

County Paper To Be Sold December 23

The Maryland Publishing Co., publisher of the Maryland News, Montgomery County weekly, newspaper, will be sold at a public auction December 23.

The sale, at the company's offices, 8081 Georgia ave., Silver Spring, will be held to satisfy a deed of trust in favor of E. Brooke Lee, the company's president and principal stockholder.

Lee said the foreclosure is being made to protect his interest represented by a $75,000 loan he made the company in 1933.

Lee declined to say what effect the sale would have on the newspaper, but it is generally believed that its publication will be continued.

The Maryland News until last October 27 was edited by Lee's son, Blair Lee 3d, who resigned to accept appointment to the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission. Gerald K. Hughes is the present editor.

Why Do We Fight Against It?
We all sell something, we either sell our backs, our hands or legs, or we sell our minds and thoughts. When we sell strength of our bodies to a man or to a company, our labor is turned into profit out of which we must take a limited weekly salary and be content with an uncertain future. However, if we direct our minds and thoughts into the right channel, there is no limit to the earnings that can be enjoyed. There is good money in sales-work. If you have something worthwhile to sell and any man can learn to sell if he is willing to apply himself to the job of selling. There is stability and continuous employment, too if you are fortunate enough to make contacts with a liberal and well-established company and that is very important.
We are prepared to show you security and weekly earnings that will surprise you and then teach you every phase of the business. The short period of training may be worth thousands of dollars to you and yet it will not cost you a dime. Give us your mind and thoughts for 3 days and you will be prepared to "Go it" alone with confidence and assurance. If you are game enough to put this to a test, apply in person at

What About Retirement in Florida?

Are you one of the many who picture a comfortable home in a mild climate—a couple of acres of good land, with room for a garden of tropical fruit? De Soto Acres, just outside the city limits of Sarasota, within 3½ miles of the city hall, are made to order for you. Lots are approximately 300x300, containing a minimum of 2 acres. Prices begin at $950, 20% down and a balance in small monthly payments. The smart thing is to buy now, while prices are low, and have your place paid for when you retire. A number of lots have already been sold to Washingtonians, whom we use as reference. No taxes up to $5,000, and no city taxes whatever. Title insured, and this land is sold on a money-back guarantee, if you are dissatisfied with your purchase. Write for descriptive folder with map of Sarasota, or phone our office.

Radio in Review

Priest Gets Close to Miracle

By John Crosby

THE Rev Patrick J. Peyton, a shy, smiling, boyish priest, is the founder and producer of Family Theater, one of the most unusual radio programs on the air. In fact, it is something of a miracle that it ever got on the air at all.

Father Peyton is a man with a single mission in life—to persuade American families to pray together regularly. That is all the program has to sell—family prayer. Yet 300 of Hollywood's top stars have appeared on the show for free; and the Mutual Broadcasting System, somewhat to its own surprise, carries the show for nothing.

It all started when Father Peyton talked Mutual into granting him half an hour to say the rosary. This took some doing. At first Mutual flatly refused to grant free time on the grounds it would infuriate Protestants and Jews who would demand equal time. But Father Peyton's soft brogue purred on and on and eventually Mutual, a little dazed, told him to go ahead.

Free Time

WITH a half hour of free network time for Mother's Day (1945) in his pocket, Father Peyton set out to capture the biggest name in show business to help him put it over. Fellow named Bing Crosby. Father Peyton, then stationed in Albany, said a prayer, then picked up the telephone and asked for Crosby in Hoyllywood. Crosby promptly came to the phone and pretty soon that soft brogue was purring into his ear. The upshot was that Bing Crosby said the rosary over Mutual; the program was a howling success; and Father Peyton fell to wondering why some sort of program dedicated to the revival of prayer couldn't become a regular rather than a special event.

He took off for Hollywood with a letter in his pocket from his superiors granting him permission to make speeches anywhere in the United States and also a stern admonition from the same superiors not to make a fool of himself or of the church. He had never been beyond South Bend in his life and in his own words: "I was bewildered and I was scared to death. I thought the bishop in Los Angeles would call me a crackpot. I got in a taxi and said 'go to a church.' I went to the church and attended mass. Then I asked for the vicar-general—he's the second in command. He was out. I went back to the church and prayed. I was as afraid as a man can be."

Father Peyton's plan was to round up enough stars to donate their services so that a network would give him free time for his program. It took a week to get permission from the Los Angeles Archbishop to go ahead with this plan. Next he located the church where most of Hollywood's Catholic stars worship, and got permission to preach all the masses for the following Sunday.

Loretta's Counsel

MEANWHILE he had consulted with Loretta Young who advised him to preach his heart out but not to mention his mission during the mass. She promised she would send any big movie names around to see him after each mass. By the end of the day, he had seven promises to appear on his show, including those of Irene Dunne and Maureen O'Hara.

From July 28 to September 1, he continued his quest for signatures in Hollywood. He lived at a house on the cathedral grounds and took dozens of two-hour trolley rides to the houses of the actors, sometimes having a brisk hour walk at the end of the trolley line. (Hollywood is no place to get around by trolley. Distances are vast.)

Everywhere doors opened to the priest but sometimes it took quite a lot of Father Peyton's brogue to swing them open. Some of the non-Catholic stars were cold to him at first but thawed after a moment or so of Father Peyton's charm. One non-Catholic actress who was especially cold at first wound up bursting into tears.

By September he was back in New York with his pockets stuffed with pledges, a total of about 10 million dollars worth of talent, all for nothing. "I'd hate to go through it again," says Father Peyton.

Kristina's Show

Kristina goes to movies with . . . Her brothers now and then . . . And always she is glad to go . . . And see the show again . . . And when she tags along with us . . . We do not mind the price . . . We pay for our Kristina dear . . . to let her see it twice . . . But always she remembers what . . . She saw the day before . . . And she insists on telling us . . . The scenes there are in store . . . And usually quite loud enough . . . For everyone to hear . . . So all the folks are sure to know . . . What pictures will appear . . . And that is most embarrassing . . . And disconcerting too . . . But she is such a darling child . . . We know not what to do.

THE DISTRICT LINE

His Christmas Wish Is For Peace on Earth

Lynn Wilson, WINX program director, tells me that the station recently received a postcard from a listener who said he was sending this message to Santa Claus:

"Dear Santa: Please call for the 'Mule Train' records at all the radio stations, and when you collect them, run your sleigh over them."

PLAY IT SAFE

This is the season of the year when many of us blunder into foolish accidents. George A. Lange, jr., of 800 Marshall st., Falls Church, Va., thinks that a little "safety first" lecture might be helpful.

To begin with, let me remind you that many a Christmas tree will flare into fire this season, usually because somebody didn't take the proper precautions.

Stand your tree in water or wet sand to keep it fresh and green. Make sure your tree and trimmings are flame-proofed. Use only approved lighting and wiring, and don't let a hot bulb come in contact with anything that will burn. Check your wiring and make sure it has no breaks.

Don't block any doorways with your tree, because in case of fire whoever is inside will be trapped. Be especially careful with candles, and remove packing materials, wrapping, paper and such as quickly as possible.

Don't fancy yourself an acrobat when you climb a shaky ladder, and above all don't try to drive your car when you're full of Christmas spirits. It might be fun to live long enough to see what the New Year is going to bring.

PET PEEVE

Mrs. Lloyd W. Gibson of 604 Underwood st. nw. wishes that big, husky, male standees in crowded streetcars and buses would stand on their own feet, and quit leaning their weight on defenseless females. She says:

"No amount of squirming or shifting of position seems to have any effect on these leaners. Last night, on the Takoma bus, I saw a tired-looking girl try to escape from a fellow who kept leaning on her, and when she looked at me with a weary smile, I remarked:

"'It's too bad some men can't be self-supporting.' But it did no good. The leaning tower continued to lean."

GIVE-AWAYS

"Brown-and-white male puppy, 2 months old and full of fun; his mother was a beautiful police dog." (Hillside 5561.)

"Handsome, affectionate, housebroken 1-year-old cat; we're leaving town." (Glebe 6004.)

"Full-grown cat, good mouser; also male and female kittens." (Falls Church 2641.)

"Two male kittens, 2 months old." (Oliver 8350.)

"Three-month-old pup; healthy, housebroken, loves children." (Warfield 0972.)

PERSONAL NOTES

Roy Lake, 4600 Benning rd. se.: Daily and Sunday; yes sir. Thanks, and I assure you that your paper will be delivered promptly and regularly.

Mrs. Francis S. Robinson, 10421 Grandin rd., Silver Spring, Md.: I hope it won't be necessary to "build a fire" under the lads, as you put it. If you don't start getting good home delivery service in three days, holler for Lill and we'll find out what's wrong. Thanks.

Mrs. R. J. Bennett, 204 Russell rd., Alexandria, Va.: Anybody with a good enough sense of humor to write "I must be the millionth transaction each week" deserves better delivery service, and we'll see that you get it. Thanks for being patient.

INCIDENTAL INTELLIGENCE

Several of you who want to send Christmas cards to Dorothy Kilmer have asked for her address. It's 1344 Harvard st. nw., and I'm sure she'll be glad to hear from you.

Dorothy will remain here until after the holidays. Then she'll return to the Woodrow Wilson Rehabilitation Center to remain until she's able to walk under her own power again.

She's still cheerful, and still determined. That's a hard combination to beat.

THE HUNTER AND THE WOLF

It seems a paradox to me
That guys who howl and whistle so
On Christmas always make detours
And circumvent the mistletoe.

David Kandel,
1311 H st. nw.

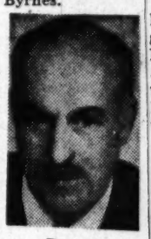
'Et Tu, Brute?' Byrnes Is Asked

By Drew Pearson

Accidentally this column has got mixed up in the row between President Truman and his old Secretary of State, Jimmie Byrnes.



Pearson

Some time ago, Byrnes wrote this columnist a letter regarding the circumstances under which he esigned from the State Department. It was this writer's belief that Byrnes, who had done a great job as Secretary of State, had been eased out because of friction and jealousy which even then was evident between the two men.

Jimmie Byrnes, however, contending that he resigned purely because of ill health, sent Truman a carbon copy of his letter to me. And Truman sent him in reply a significant letter which ignored the issue of why Byrnes resigned, and dwelt instead on Byrnes' conversion to Dixiecratism.

"I have read your Washington and Lee speech," Mr. Truman said, and then went on to comment on the manner in which Mr. Byrnes was deserting the political philosophy of Roosevelt and Truman. As an afterthought, the President wrote at the bottom of the letter the following postscript:

"I now know how Caesar felt," he said, referring to Brutus' famed stab in the back, "when he said 'Et tu, Brute?'"

When Mr. Byrnes replied to this letter, he addressed himself chiefly to Truman's postscript. He explained at some length that he did not consider himself a deserter from the Democratic Party, but remained a devoted supporter of its fundamental principles. Then Byrnes polished off his letter with this crack:

"I am not a Brutus, and neither do I consider you a Caesar."

Gamblers Evade Taxes

Most notorious gambling network in southern California operates under the name of the Gurantee Finance Co. of Los Angeles, which serves not only as a respectable cover but loans money to bookies and acts as a payoff center.

Recently Los Angeles County indicted 12 members of this cover agency.

Prior to this indictment, however, the Federal Government through conscientious Internal Revenue agents on the West Coast had caught four of these big-time gamblers in what appeared to be a clear case of tax fraud. Governor Warren's forthright California Crime Commission was responsible for the original clue. The crime commission had seized some of the gamblers' books and turned them over to the T-men.

Before doing so, however, the California Crime Commission specifically asked the United States Treasury whether it would be willing to cooperate in cleaning up the California gambling racket, and got an affirmative answer.

Accordingly, T-Man E. Goodykoontz, Internal Revenue intelligence agent for San Francisco; Ralph Read, another intelligence agent, and Walter M. Campbell of the chief counsel's office in San Francisco got busy. The evidence they assembled appeard conclusive.

In 1948, the Guarantee Finance Co. listed in its income-tax return $248,000 paid to "Lopez," and another $108,000 paid to "Special." No further explanation of these huge expenditures was given, but it appeared from the Treasury investigation that $108,000 was paid to runners, and that the $248,000 to "Lopez" was probably paid for police protection.

The gambling company's 1947 income-tax return was somewhat similar, with $247,000 paid to "Lopez" and $109,000 paid to "Special."

After preparing what they considered an airtight case, the West Coast T-men came to Washington, where they recommended the prosecution of Marvin Kovey, Albert Kogus, Harry Rockwell and Phil Cobert, the chief partners of the Guarantee Finance Co.

In Washington, a Treasury conference took place between the three West Coast T-men, together with Charles Oliphant, general counsel of Internal Revenue; W. H. Woolf, head of the Intelligence unit; and Riley Campbell, in charge of Internal Revenue's penal division.

One other official attending this conference was Assistant Commissioner of Internal Revenue Daniel A. Bolich, who has been seen in New York in the company of the famous gambling king, Frankie Costello.

But simultaneous with the departure of the West Coast T-men for Washington, there also left Los Angeles for Washington one Harry Sackman, a certified public accountant, since then indicted by Los Angeles County. Sackman had been in charge of the gambling ring's books and hurried East for the purpose of getting his gambling bosses out of the soup. In Washington he conferred with Ted Hayes, former head of the International Sweepstakes in Mexico City.

Significantly when the books of the Guarantee Finance Co. were seized in Los Angeles, various papers were found linking the California gambling ring to Ted Hayes' old organization in Mexico City, including one telegram in which the Mexican sweepstakes asked for $7000.

Hayes, no longer with the Mexican sweepstakes, was formerly associated with Ed Flynn, Democratic boss of The Bronx. He is now with the Federal Security Administration in Washington. When queried about the Sackman visit, Hayes stated that Sackman had conferred with him about the tax case but that he had told Sackman he could be of no assistance.

Apparently Sackman found other wires to pull and pulled them successfully. For the supposedly airtight case against Kovey, Kogus, Rockwell, and Cobert was immediately dropped. The Treasury has done absolutely nothing since.

Only other development is that Los Angeles County has now indicted Kovey, Kogus, Rockwell and Cobert. As far as the United State Treasury is concerned, however, no effort has been made to proceed with criminal prosecution.

The Lyons Den

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK.—Mark Ethridge and Paul Porter, the Kentuckians who were named by President Truman to the Palestine Conciliation Commission, this week met Irene Landry, the French interpreter of the U. N., who had done the translating job for them at all the conferences . . . "She wasn't quite accurate," Ethridge said, "because she distilled my angry phrases. Whenever I'd say 'Goddammit,' Irene would translate it 'Mon Dieu'" . . . "The others understood," Miss Landry replied, "because I said it with a Marseille accent."

DRAMA DEPT.: Miss Landry works in the simultaneous multiple translators' unit. When a speech is delivered at the U. N., the other delegates can listen, via earphones, to its simultaneous translations in Chinese, French, Russian, Spanish and English . . . Before these machines were introduced, a series of interpreters would mount the platform and read the translations. Once, a delegate concluded his stirring speech with a sweeping gesture which swept a glass of water from the stand. When the French translator read the translation, he placed a glass of water on the stand and then swept it off.

WATER DEPT.: At each performance of "South Pacific" Mary Martin shampoos her hair on stage, underneath a shower, while she sings "I'm Gonna Wash That Man Right Out of My Hair." The manufacturers of Minipoo, the dry shampoo, suggested that Miss Martin use their product now, because of the water shortage in N. Y. The suggestion was rejected with a reminder that the setting is the South Pacific, and it would be incongruous to show Miss Martin using a dry shampoo on an island in the Pacific.
